Election Eve Vote Appeals Set By Rivals

Pollsters Favor Kennedy; Total Vote May Hit 67 Million

WASHINGTON (AP) — Richard M. Nixon and John F. Kennedy kept up their feverish campaign on opposite sides of the nation Sunday for the votes which will elect one of them president on Tuesday.

As on other Sundays in the closing weeks of this wearying drive for the White House, there was no lull for the Republican vice president and the Democratic senator who want to lead the nation for the next four years.

And there was no letup either in the enthusiasm which their partisans showed for them.

Nixon chartered a plane to take him from Los Angeles to Anchorage, Alaska. Thus, despite a knee

Nixon Suggests Ex-Presidents' Peace Mission

Ike Willing, GOP Candidate Says

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Vice President Richard M. Nixon set forth Sunday night a plan for President Eisenhower to join after he leaves office with former Presidents Harry S. Truman and Herbert C. Hoover on a goodwill visit to the Iron Curtain satellite nations of Europe.

In a coast-to-coast television address as he started a final whirlwind drive for election to the presidency, Nixon said he already has talked this over with Eisenhower "and he assures me that he is more than ready to carry the torch of freedom on such a journey into the states of Eastern Europe."

Nixon, Republican candidate for the White House, said further that Eisenhower had suggested, "and I fully agree," that the two other living ex-presidents, Mr. Herbert Hoover and Mr. Harry Truman, be invited to join in carrying the

Scholarship Plan Pledged By Kennedy

Wildly Cheering Conn., N.Y. Crowds Hail Demo Nominee

EN ROUTE WITH KENNEDY (AP) — Sen. John F. Kennedy, campaigning all day long before spectacular Sunday crowds, promised Sunday to work, if elected president, until a college education is available to every American with the talent to pursue it.

The Democratic nominee made this pledge in his final bid for New York's 45 electoral votes with another foray into normally Republican Suffolk County. He spoke there before a wildly screaming, cheering crowd that overflowed the Commack, Long Island, Arena and spread out all around the meeting place outside.

Kennedy went into Suffolk County after previous speeches, starting after midnight, before large and enthusiastic turnouts in New Haven, Bridgeport, Waterbury and other Connecticut cities. He chose the Long Island arena for a prepared address proposing a system of higher education measuring up to every American's capacity rather than to his race or means.

Would Boost Student Loans

He proposed federal scholarships for a limited number of needy and qualified students — perhaps 15 to 25,000 initially.

"Such a federal scholarship program — paying a substantial portion of expenses," the candidate said, "would enable thousands of bright young Americans who otherwise could not afford to do so to pursue their educational full time."

Kennedy also proposed increased federal loans to needy students under the National Defense Education Act as well as through a new student loan insurance program. At the same time he proposed "an adequate college housing program" to enable schools to keep pace with increasing enrollments, and for construction of technical and medical schools.

He was almost mobbed by well-wishers as he made his way to the arena. Hundreds surged against his car in an effort to shake his hand or touch him. Police estimated the crowd at 9,000.

N.Y. Victory Vital, Kennedy Says

Kennedy in his arena speech said it was vital for him to carry New York State with its big chunk of electoral votes if he is to win the election.

In a brief speech on his arrival at MacArthur Airport, he expressed thanks to the crowd for waiting patiently in the cold for his arrival. At that point he told his listeners that "my wife came from this county," and added: "I hope Suffolk County — which is not noted for Democratic strength — will go Democratic on Tuesday."

From Long Island, Kennedy flew on to address another tumultuous crowd that overflowed the 8,500-seat Teaneck, N. J., Armory. Gov. Robert B. Meyner introduced Kennedy, calling him "the man of the century." There were signs suggesting: "Vote for Kennedy, he's a lousy golfer."

Kennedy, continuing to display confidence, said, "This country needs a Democratic victory." He said the assumptions on which Nixon has asked for victory "are beginning to look hollow—in fact they are already shown to be untrue."

Kennedy said he had reference to Nixon's claims America "has never had it so good—that its prestige was never higher — and America's strength in relation to Soviet Russia is getting greater."

"It's time we started moving again instead of resting on our oars," Kennedy told a crowd in New Haven, estimated from 20,000 to 45,000, that recently published reports of a sharp increase in unemployment helped prove the error of his presidential rival's arguments.

Two Die In Congo Clash

LEOPOLDVILLE (UPI) — Congolese police and army troops clashed Sunday in an exchange that left two dead as President Joseph Kasavubu took off for New York for talks on the Congo crisis with U. N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjöld.

Leopoldville Province Premier Cleophas Kamitatu said the clash broke out when a police adjutant knocked down and killed a soldier with his small automobile near the Congolese army's Camp Leopold II just outside the capital. Kamitatu, who controls Leopoldville police and is a supporter of "neutralized" Premier Patrice Lumumba, said the adjutant kept going until companions of the run down soldier killed him with a burst of gunfire.

She Put School Question To Nixon

Barbara Flinn, 9-year-old fourth grader, smiles as she displays a letter and autographed photo from Vice President Richard Nixon. Someone spread the rumor that if Nixon was elected president, children would have to go to school on Saturdays. This worried Barbara and she wrote the Republican presidential nominee assuring him of her support, and put the question to him. Nixon replied, thanking Barbara for her support and said the matter of attending school on Saturdays is for local and state officials to decide and is not in the jurisdiction of a federal official such as the president or vice president. AP Survey Shows Kennedy In Striking Distance Of Victory

WASHINGTON (AP)—On the eve of the election, Democrat John F. Kennedy evidently has opened a healthy electoral vote lead over Republican Richard M. Nixon and appears within striking distance of winning the presidency.

But, with the possible exception of Ohio (25), the survey did not produce any clear signs of a turning in Nixon's favor, as the vice president said happened after his fourth TV debate with Kennedy on Oct. 21. In Ohio itself there was doubt that any Nixon gains had wiped out an earlier Kennedy edge.

What did emerge was a picture of the religious issue rising anew after seemingly receding in the middle weeks of the campaign. Kennedy's Roman Catholic faith was mentioned in reports from state after state.

For example, the religious issue was reported contributing to the doubtful status of such states as Minnesota, Texas (24), North Carolina (14), Missouri (13) and Kentucky (10).

In some of the big industrial states with hefty Catholic populations there was ground for thinking religion was a plus for Kennedy.

This final pre-election survey indicates these states may be listed under Kennedy's name, with his margin ranging from substantial to tiny: Alaska (3), Alabama (11), Arkansas (8), California, Connecticut (8), Georgia (12), Louisiana (10), Maryland (9), Massachusetts (16), Nevada (3), New Jersey (16), New York, Rhode Island (4), West Virginia (8), and Wisconsin (12).

Erich Raeder, Hitler's Naval Chief, Dies At 84

KIEL, Germany (AP) — Erich Raeder, the grand admiral who built Hitler's navy into the terror of the North Atlantic, died Sunday in this old port city where he was hospitalized as a mental patient. He was 84.

Raeder, released from war crimes prison in 1955 because of poor health, fell mentally ill last year after the death of his wife, Erika. A court ordered him placed under the legal guardianship of former Adm. Werner Fuchs.

Fuchs said Sunday Raeder had been partially paralyzed and was unable to read, write or speak during his last months. He spent those months in the Kiel Neurological Clinic, and Fuchs said he had been in and out of the hospital for two years.

"The grand admiral simply faded away," Fuchs told a newsman. "Death occurred while the grand admiral was asleep."

The stiff, Prussian admiral headed Germany's navy for 15 years. During that time he led the development of the pocket battleship and the U-boat submarine fleet that took such a heavy toll of Allied convoys during the war.

Raeder fell from favor in 1945, when the submarine campaign was going badly. Hitler wanted to build more U-boats but Raeder wanted to build up the surface fleet.

MASSENA, N.Y. (UPI) — At least 20 ships were tied up in the St. Lawrence Seaway Sunday because of a jammed lock gate.

West Pennsylvania, Ohio Hit By Early Snowstorm

ERIE, Pa. (UPI) — Winter, in its whitest form, came tumbling into western Pennsylvania, Ohio, and the Midwest Sunday dumping up to six inches of snow, causing a rash of traffic accidents and claiming at least two lives.

State police throughout this lake port city area were kept on the run with at least 16 traffic mishaps involving 20 persons, four of whom were injured seriously enough to require hospitalization.

Two inches of snow fell here and in suburban Millcreek. Near Corry, Pa., recorded six inches. Bradford, 80 miles to the east, was blanketed with two inches as was rural Girard. Wet snow struck in and around the Pittsburgh district. The slick

Hole Blown In Train Car; Dozen Hurt

5th Mystery Blast Since Oct. 2 Blamed On 'Sunday Bomber'

NEW YORK (AP) — One person was killed and at least 12 were seriously injured when a bomb went off Sunday night in a subway train at a Harlem stop. Firemen said the bomb exploded as the train halted at the Independent subway station at 125th Street and Eighth Avenue. Fire-fighting equipment was rushed to the scene.

Since Oct. 2, four mysterious homemade bombs have exploded in New York, and there have been several additional bomb scares. Sunday night's explosion was the first in which anyone was killed.

The subway car was damaged extensively.

Heavy Sunday night traffic piled up on busy 125 Street, which cuts through the main business district of Harlem, as curiosity seekers converged on the scene.

"Sunday Bomber" Blamed

Three of the previous bomb blasts also have occurred on Sundays. Police blamed a "Sunday bomber," who planted the explosives in public places such as Times Square, near the New York Public Library, and the Staten Island ferry.

Harry E. Wills, conductor of the express subway, said the train was waiting with its doors open at the station for a local to arrive.

Suddenly, he said, there was a "terrific blast" in the fifth car of the six-car train. About 30 passengers were in the car.

The bomb apparently was planted under a seat near the rear of the car.

The blast demolished the seat, ripped an 18-inch hole through the car floor, and shattered all the windows of the car.

Woman Killed

Blood was spattered over the station platform and throughout the wrecked car. The station was a mass of screaming, terrified passengers.

Killed by the explosion was an unidentified woman. Police originally had reported two dead.

Patrolman Rupert Cobb, first on the scene, said he heard the explosion and leaped down the stairs to the lower of the station's two levels. Cobb said: "Smoke was pouring from the car. The platform was foggy with smoke. I got into the car and heard a woman screaming faintly: 'Please help me. Please help me.'"

"Her legs had been blown off. She was sitting on one of the seats and then she fell over. She died within minutes."

London Police Battle Fawkes Day Hooligans

LONDON (AP)—Police fought a running battle through London streets early Sunday with hundreds of yelling teen-agers celebrating the time the houses of Parliament almost got blown sky high. About 170 were arrested.

The riot climaxed a night of spectacular pyrotechnics in Trafalgar Square Saturday—anniversary of the day in 1605 when a man called Guy Fawkes was caught red-handed trying to blast the Commons. Fawkes was hanged.

A crowd of 10,000 had massed in the square to watch the traditional show. The air was acrid with the smoke and fumes of bursting rockets and thundering firecrackers. Then police pounced on hooligans who were tossing firecrackers into the crowd.

The mob reeled down Whitehall—in the direction of Parliament. Screaming girls were injured in the scuffles. Young men hurled home-made bombs.

Ambulances ran a shuttle service to Trafalgar Square, carting off the burned.

Farmer, 4 Children Die In Flash Fire

NEWPORT, Ark. (UPI) — A farmer and four of his children burned to death when a flash fire started by a fuel can explosion destroyed their home 18 miles northeast of here Sunday.

Aaron C. Hurst, 46, died in his brother's car as he was being rushed to a Jonesboro, Ark., hospital. His clothes burned off, he had managed to crawl through a window before the roof collapsed.

The charred bodies of the children — Geraldine, 16, Alice, 11, Kenneth, 9, and Wanda, 6—were found in the ashes.

Dry, Cold Election Weather Forecast

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U. S. Weather Bureau predicts generally dry and cold weather for most of the nation on election day.

In a special election day forecast Sunday, the bureau said it will be unusually cold in the north central part of the country. Temperatures will dip below normal for this time of the year.

Scattered light rain mixed with snow is seen in the east central plains, mid-Mississippi Valley and Montana while snow flurries are predicted in the Great Lakes region and in the northern and central Appalachian area.

A sizable number of voters weren't telling the pollsters which candidate they favor.

Other imponderables were the question of religion and the impact which President Eisenhower's campaigning for Nixon would have.

Apparently stung by Kennedy's campaign theme that the nation has been standing still under his Republican leadership, Eisenhower has blasted at Kennedy's program as extravagant and scornfully termed the Democratic nominee a "young genius."

Monday night, along with Nixon and vice - presidential nominee Henry Cabot Lodge, Eisenhower will be on nationwide television and radio networks with a final vote appeal.

Kennedy and his running mate, Lyndon B. Johnson, made a similar joint pitch from New York City Saturday night, and Kennedy will get in his last radio-TV bid from Boston Monday night.

He will await the voters' verdict on Tuesday night at his home in Hyannis Port, Mass.; Nixon will be in Los Angeles.

Whatever the reason — Democrats said it was desperation — Nixon decided to go before the people Monday afternoon in a four-hour-long TV question-and-answer session.

From a studio in Detroit, Nixon will speak and will answer questions telephoned to him.

Democrats put the cost of the GOP program at half a million dollars—and said they couldn't afford to match it.

Clark Gable Rallies After Heart Attack

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Clark Gable, 59, the "King" of the movies, suffered a heart attack Sunday, his doctor reported.

After Gable was taken to Hollywood Presbyterian Hospital and examined, Dr. Fred Cerrini described the attack as a coronary thrombosis, saying: "His condition is good and he is resting comfortably."

The physician added: "Fortunately I ordered Mr. Gable under oxygen as soon as I was told of his condition and sent him to the hospital."

Cardiographic tests were made at the hospital.

Gable's wife Kay went with him. She is expecting a baby in March which will be the first child for Gable.

"He is resting comfortably and they have given him a lot of medicine," said Mrs. Gable. "The doctors are leaving and will return later tonight."

She said he will be confined to the hospital for some time.

Also at the hospital was Howard Strickling, director of publicity at MGM and long-time friend of Gable. He said he and Gable had planned to look at a horse Sunday but the actor telephoned Saturday saying: "I feel too lousy to look at horses."

Mrs. Gable called Strickling Sunday morning and told him her husband was feeling worse. Strickling advised her to call a doctor immediately.

As far as is known Gable had no previous history of a heart condition. Only Friday he was working on a movie, appearing in a scene with Marilyn Monroe for "The Misfits."

U. N. Assembly Begins Debate On Congo Today

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UPI) — The United Nations General Assembly launches its debate on the Congo crisis Monday in the opening salvo on the "colonialism" issue expected to dominate this year's session of the world parliament.

Congolese President Joseph Kasavubu was flying to New York to confer with U. N. Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld. Informed sources in Leopoldville have said he planned to protest to Hammarskjöld that the U. N. has interfered in that African nation's internal affairs.

Red Chieftains Meet In Great Display Of Unity

MOSCOW (AP) — Leaders of world communism assembled Sunday in the largest display of political unity seen here in years. Their meeting was keynoted by a declaration that war can be prevented because the Communist world is strong enough to keep the peace.

Frol R. Kozlov, a secretary of the Soviet Communist party's Central Committee, kicked off the 43rd anniversary celebrations of the Bolshevik Revolution with a speech to an audience of 15,000 in the Lenin Sports Palace.

"World war can be excluded from the life of human society," he said. "Imperialism now is unable to dictate at will whether there should be war or not. The Soviet Union does not fear the bellicose bluster of the aggressors. Strength now is on our side."

Soviet Premier Khrushchev, closely followed by President Liu Shao-chi of Communist China, led a procession of more than 100 Communist leaders from all over the world to a flag-draped platform for the traditional rally signaling the start of the celebrations. Monday the Russians stage their annual parade of Soviet might in Red Square.

Chinese Communist Chairman Mao Tze-tung and Premier Chou En-lai were at home in Peiping but sent a message hailing the "unprecedented" power of the Communist camp and the leadership of the Soviet Union in "striving for peaceful coexistence between countries with different social systems."

Another absentee was Italian Communist leader Palmiro Togliatti, preoccupied at home with municipal elections.

Still another absentee was Marshal Tito, president of Yugoslavia and secretary-general of its Communist party. He too, sent to Khrushchev "warm congratulations and sincere wishes for further successful progress."

But just about every other well-known Communist was there.

Most of Nixon's 30 minute address — he called it "the most important half hour of the campaign" — dealt with the world situation. However, in an apparent allusion to the controversy in some areas over the Roman Catholicism of his Democratic rival, Sen. John F. Kennedy, the vice president said: "There is no legitimate religious issue in this campaign. Sen. Kennedy and I differ as far as our faiths are concerned, but we both have faith in God...you should vote for neither me nor him on the basis of religion."

Shortly before taking off for Alaska, Nixon also proposed that representatives of the Communist satellite countries in Eastern Europe be invited to visit the United States next year, "and travel here (Continued on Page 2, Col. 4)

She Put School Question To Nixon

Barbara Flinn, 9-year-old fourth grader, smiles as she displays a letter and autographed photo from Vice President Richard Nixon. Someone spread the rumor that if Nixon was elected president, children would have to go to school on Saturdays. This worried Barbara and she wrote the Republican presidential nominee assuring him of her support, and put the question to him. Nixon replied, thanking Barbara for her support and said the matter of attending school on Saturdays is for local and state officials to decide and is not in the jurisdiction of a federal official such as the president or vice president. AP Survey Shows Kennedy In Striking Distance Of Victory

WASHINGTON (AP)—On the eve of the election, Democrat John F. Kennedy evidently has opened a healthy electoral vote lead over Republican Richard M. Nixon and appears within striking distance of winning the presidency.

But, in gauging the election battle tides, the Associated Press, found that many states — several of the bigger ones among them — remain in doubt. A number of them are believed inclining to Sen. Kennedy, a couple to Vice President Nixon.

Nixon could overtake and beat Kennedy by capturing a significant segment of the doubtful states and by wresting some of the states where Kennedy's lead is considered slight. Of course, Nixon would have to keep his own group intact. In various states, the undecided—or silent—vote is believed big enough to tip the balance.

The survey — encompassing the judgments of AP political observers, newspaper analysts, and party leaders, as well as certain poll findings—turns up this breakdown:

Kennedy rated out front in 15 states with 197 electoral votes—72 short of the 269 minimum needed to win. In all, there are 537 electoral votes.

Nixon credited with setting the pace in 17 states totaling 112 electoral votes, 85 behind Kennedy and 157 short of the minimum needed for election on Tuesday.

In the tossup class 18 states accounting for 238 electoral votes—more than either man had to his credit.

This represented a substantial pickup for Kennedy over an AP survey three weeks ago when Nixon was given a lead in 19 states with 141 electoral votes. Kennedy in 14 states with 129 electoral votes, and 17 states with 267 votes were listed as doubtful.

Kennedy's bound ahead could be attributed to his gaining an apparent lead in New York (45) and California (32), both of which were considered highly uncertain last time. Even now, the Kennedy edge in California particularly was considered quite thin.

Meanwhile, Utah (4) moved from the doubtful group to the Nixon column but this was much more than offset when these states shifted from the Nixon list to the undecided category: Minnesota (11), Illinois (27), Wyoming (3) and Hawaii (3).

This latest AP checker was conducted during the past week and perhaps does not fully mirror any influence President Eisen-

Erich Raeder, Hitler's Naval Chief, Dies At 84

KIEL, Germany (AP) — Erich Raeder, the grand admiral who built Hitler's navy into the terror of the North Atlantic, died Sunday in this old port city where he was hospitalized as a mental patient. He was 84.

Raeder, released from war crimes prison in 1955 because of poor health, fell mentally ill last year after the death of his wife, Erika. A court ordered him placed under the legal guardianship of former Adm. Werner Fuchs.

Fuchs said Sunday Raeder had been partially paralyzed and was unable to read, write or speak during his last months. He spent those months in the Kiel Neurological Clinic, and Fuchs said he had been in and out of the hospital for two years.

"The grand admiral simply faded away," Fuchs told a newsman. "Death occurred while the grand admiral was asleep."

The stiff Prussian admiral headed Germany's navy for 15 years. During that time he led the development of the pocket battleship and the U-boat submarine fleet that took such a heavy toll of Allied convoys during the war.

Raeder fell from favor in 1945, when the submarine campaign was going badly. Hitler wanted to build more U-boats but Raeder wanted to build up the surface fleet.

A crowd of 10,000 had massed in the square to watch the traditional show. The air was acrid with the smoke and fumes of bursting rockets and thundering firecrackers. Then police pounced on hooligans who were tossing firecrackers into the crowd.

The mob reeled down Whitehall—in the direction of Parliament. Screaming girls were injured in the scuffles. Young men hurled home-made bombs.

Ambulances ran a shuttle service to Trafalgar Square, carting off the burned.

Farmer, 4 Children Die In Flash Fire

NEWPORT, Ark. (UPI) — A farmer and four of his children burned to death when a flash fire started by a fuel can explosion destroyed their home 18 miles northeast of here Sunday.

Aaron C. Hurst, 46, died in his brother's car as he was being rushed to a Jonesboro, Ark., hospital. His clothes burned off, he had managed to crawl through a window before the roof collapsed. The charred bodies of the children — Geraldine, 16, Alice, 11, Kenneth, 9, and Wanda, 6—were found in the ashes.

Hole Blown In Train Car; Dozen Hurt

5th Mystery Blast Since Oct. 2 Blamed On 'Sunday Bomber'

NEW YORK (AP) — One person was killed and at least 12 were seriously injured when a bomb went off Sunday night in a subway train at a Harlem stop. Firemen said the bomb exploded as the train halted at the Independent subway station at 125th Street and Eighth Avenue. Fire-fighting equipment was rushed to the scene.

Since Oct. 2, four mysterious homemade bombs have exploded in New York, and there have been several additional bomb scares. Sunday night's explosion was the first in which anyone was killed.

The subway car was damaged extensively.

Heavy Sunday night traffic piled up on busy 125 Street, which cuts through the main business district of Harlem, as curiosity seekers converged on the scene.

'Sunday Bomber' Blamed

Three of the previous bomb blasts also have occurred on Sundays. Police blamed a "Sunday bomber," who planted the explosives in public places such as Times Square, near the New York Public Library, and the Staten Island ferry.

Harry E. Wills, conductor of the express subway, said the train was waiting with its doors open at the station for a local to arrive.

Suddenly, he said, there was a "terrific blast" in the fifth car of the six-car train. About 30 passengers were in the car.

The bomb apparently was planted under a seat near the rear of the car.

The blast demolished the seat, ripped an 18-inch hole through the car floor, and shattered all the windows of the car.

Woman Killed

Blood was spattered over the station platform and throughout the wrecked car. The station was a mass of screaming, terrified passengers.

Killed by the explosion was an unidentified woman. Police originally had reported two dead.

Patrolman Rupert Cobb, first on the scene, said he heard the explosion and leaped down the stairs to the lower of the station's two levels. Cobb said: "Smoke was pouring from the car. The platform was foggy with smoke. I got into the car and heard a woman screaming faintly: 'Please help me. Please help me.'"

"Her legs had been blown off. She was sitting on one of the seats and then she fell over. She died within minutes."

London Police Battle Fawkes Day Hooligans

LONDON (AP)—Police fought a running battle through London streets early Sunday with hundreds of yelling teen-agers celebrating the time the houses of Parliament almost got blown sky high. About 170 were arrested.

The riot climaxed a night of spectacular pyrotechnics in Trafalgar Square Saturday—anniversary of the day in 1605 when a man called Guy Fawkes was caught red-handed trying to blast the Commons. Fawkes was hanged.

A crowd of 10,000 had massed in the square to watch the traditional show. The air was acrid with the smoke and fumes of bursting rockets and thundering firecrackers. Then police pounced on hooligans who were tossing firecrackers into the crowd.

The mob reeled down Whitehall—in the direction of Parliament. Screaming girls were injured in the scuffles. Young men hurled home-made bombs.

New Protestant Voices Raised Against Bigotry

NEW YORK (AP) — New Protestant voices were raised Sunday against the religious views of the Democratic candidate, Sen. John F. Kennedy, who is a Roman Catholic, said in a sermon at Marble Collegiate Church: "The American people are fortunate that they have a choice of candidates who are Christians in the religious sense of the word, but it is not the only issue, nor should I believe that the election should be decided on this issue."

The Rev. Dr. Daniel A. Poling, who previously had questioned the religious views of the Democratic candidate, Sen. John F. Kennedy, said in a sermon at Marble Collegiate Church: "The American people are fortunate that they have a choice of candidates who are Christians in the religious sense of the word, but it is not the only issue, nor should I believe that the election should be decided on this issue."

Tributes Paid To Ward Bond; Funeral Today

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—The body of actor Ward Bond, 55-year-old star of movies and television, was returned here Sunday from Texas by his grieving widow.

Bond, whose "Wagon Train" series was one of television's top rated shows, had gone to Dallas Friday for Sunday's Dallas-Los Angeles professional football game. But what started as a holiday day turned to sorrow as Bond was struck down by a heart attack in a Dallas motel Saturday.

His body was returned by air. Actor John Wayne, a long time friend; actors Terry Wilson and Frank McGrath; Bond's sister, Bee Moser, and Navy Capt. Mark Armistead, another friend, were in the small group that met the plane at rainy, gloomy international airport.

Among a group of friends accompanying Bond's widow from Texas was director John Ford.

Ford, another long friend of the white-haired, gruff actor, quoted Mrs. Bond as saying:

"Thank Heaven he went out like he wanted—at the top of his career."

"Ward was a very, very wonderful person," said Ford. "A truly great American. He loved his country and his heritage."

Funeral services were scheduled Monday in suburban Reseda. Bond had requested services at the rest home for Purple Heart veterans of World War II, his favorite charity. Interment will be private.

Nixon said this would give such representatives the same opportunity to see America which Soviet Premier Khrushchev had when he first came to the United States last year.

Nixon went before his television cameras to record his nationwide broadcast for use later in the evening after he had departed for Anchorage, Alaska, 50th state on the campaign trail which he hopes will lead to the White House.

Before taking off, Nixon—in a statement—accused his Democratic rival, Sen. John F. Kennedy, of proposing to undermine the Selective Service military draft with a program "obviously concocted for campaign purposes."

"All I need is to get some circulation in my legs and I'll be back on the golf course again," he said in his gruff, closed-mouth way. Though he never admitted it, his favorite vice was chewing tobacco and he was chewing some that day.

Nor would he admit that he was broke. He said he was anxious to return to his sumptuous apartment, which was being redecorated for him.

Actually, he had lived for years in two cluttered rooms in a faded hotel next to Truman's Chinese Theater. He did his own cooking and had no car or television set. His assistants included a few old movie shorts and stacks of scripts.

Pakistan Storm Toll May Never Be Known

CHITTAGONG, East Pakistan shanties went down in the first dark—An old man huddled in a slashing wind of Oct. 10. A utility pole fell, wires dropped, dead child raised a grimy face to the increasing debris, rain, a passerby and wailed, "Is this way tracks were swept from the embankment along the river and the banks were derailed. Sixteen ships, including two of 10,000 tons were torn from river moorings. One was tossed far into paddy fields which line the river opposite Chittagong.

Huge cranes that had made Chittagong one of the major ports of the East, serving the 48 million people of East Pakistan, were twisted and wrecked. More than $2 million in U.S. aid had gone into developing Chittagong port.

When the storm was over, dead bodies were strewn through the wreckage. Some persons drowned, some were crushed by falling debris and some were burned to death in fires which swept the ruins. The hot tropical sun that emerged brought the festering danger of pestilence.

Chittagong clusters along the Karnaphuli River, nine miles from the sea. A boom town of half a million population, it is composed mostly of shanties with only a small proportion of substantially built houses. The Souvanna gained power in September on a pledge to negotiate a truce ending the six-year civil war against the Pathet Lao and already has opened talks with them. The fighting also has subsided.

Nixon said the Kennedy proposal amounts to saying to young men eligible for the draft, "If you will volunteer for a 'peace corps' you can evade your obligations under the Selective Service and Training Act."

Around him the stench of dead bodies—humans, and cattle—arose from the smashed remains of this port city. Only pale moonlight lit the scene. The electricity had failed in the first 100-mile winds that wrecked Chittagong Oct. 31.

The first vicious storm Oct. 10, accompanied by tremendous tidal waves, was believed to have killed more than 6,000 on the flat land at the mouth of the Ganges and Brahmaputra rivers. Md. Leaders Of Both Parties Predict Victory Tomorrow

Reported Registration Fraud In Baltimore County Probed

By The Associated Press

Maryland leaders of both political parties predict sweeping victory in Tuesday's election.

Kennedy by 75,000. Nixon by a "substantial" margin. Those are the claims.

The optimistic forecasts by both sides shared the weekend political spotlight with a probe of reported registration fraud in Baltimore County.

The Justice Department Sunday told all U. S. attorneys to watch for attempts to vote non-existent persons. It said it had received complaints from Baltimore County, Md., Gary, Ind. and Warren, Mich.

Meanwhile, Baltimore County election officials said some voters may be asked to write their signatures if their identifications are questioned.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation is investigating the Baltimore County reports at the request of the Department of Justice.

The Justice Department said it had received complaints that names of hundreds of non-existent persons had been added to registration lists in the three areas named. The department named no parties or individuals as being involved in the reported fraudulent registration.

Acting Atty. Gen. Lawrence E. Walsh spoke of "a particular kind of registration activity which recently has been brought to the attention of the department."

"In Baltimore, for example, this was discovered simply by sending registered voters to newly registered voters who were not listed in the telephone directory. These letters were returned with notations that the named person was not at the given address," Walsh said.

It appeared, Walsh said, that these registrations had grown out of drives by "certain organizations and persons" to obtain new registrations by paying workers a fee for each new registration obtained. He said reports indicated that some of the workers in those drives may be turning in fictitious names "for easy personal profit as well as for other purposes."

The U. S. attorneys were directed to examine every complaint to determine if a violation of federal law is involved.

The fuss in Baltimore County started after Republicans complained that some 700 of 1,000 letters sent to new voters on the county's registration lists were returned to the Post Office as undeliverable.

The weekend victory predictions were made by Thomas B. Finan, state Democratic chairman, and D. Eldred Rinehart, GOP state chairman.

"We know one thing for certain," Finan said, "and that is that the country is assured a Democratic House and Senate for the next four years and it will be to the best interest and welfare of the nation that we have a Democratic President to work with them."

"Unquestionably, Maryland's seven Democratic congressmen will be elected," Finan said.

Rinehart saw it differently. "On the eve of election day," he said, "it appears that the Nixon-Lodge ticket has gained a substantial lead in Maryland."

"The Republican party will not allow itself to be overconfident, and it is determined to continue working at full force until the last vote is counted."

"We are particularly encouraged by the extremely fine prospects of our congressional candidates," he said, predicting a "substantial" Republican representation in the new Congress.

The Democrats announced that Gov. Tawes and Baltimore's Mayor J. Harold Grady will make a 15-minute election eve television broadcast. The Republicans plan no such last-minute TV appeal.

Some political leaders say about 80 per cent of Maryland's eligible voters will go to the polls Tuesday. The state's official registration list totals more than 1,300,000 with nine presidential electoral votes in the balance.

Despite the public predictions of sweeping victory, leaders in both camps privately forecast a close contest.

Democrat John F. Kennedy generally is seen as the favorite over Vice President Richard M. Nixon, providing Kennedy carries Baltimore big enough to offset Nixon's expected strength elsewhere in the state.

Democrats hold better than a 2-1 edge in registrations but the state has not gone Democratic in a presidential election since 1944.

Voters will be faced with a long ballot Tuesday. In addition to the presidential race, they will choose seven congressmen, vote on 15 proposed amendments to the Maryland constitution and decide whether to ratify a new Potomac River Compact with Virginia.

There are also some hot local questions, and there are judgeship races in Baltimore City and Baltimore County.

Three Deaths Boost Traffic Count To 434

By The Associated Press

Two pedestrians and a pregnant mother were killed over the weekend, increasing the death toll on Maryland highways to 434, 11 less than over a comparable period in 1959.

A Janesville, N. Y. truck driver also died in Washington County Hospital, Hagerstown, from injuries suffered in an accident Friday near Buckeystown, Frederick County.

One of the pedestrians was Arthur B. Barcart of Baltimore. The 56-year-old man was struck in Baltimore and was taken to South Baltimore General Hospital where he was pronounced dead early Sunday.

State Police said Barcart was hit by a car operated by Samuel Deronda Samuels, 17, of Baltimore.

The other pedestrian was a 65-year-old Baltimore man who was hit by an automobile in College Park, in Prince Georges County.

Charles A. Johnson was struck by an auto operated by John Allen Hewitt of College Park, State Police said.

The mother was killed Saturday night when the car driven by her husband ran off the road and rammed a utility pole.

State Police said Mrs. Margaret Anne Welch, 22, of Jessup was thrown from the car. She was dead on arrival at St. Agnes Hospital. Her husband, two children and a sister also were injured.

The accident occurred near Annapolis Junction in Anne Arundel County, police said. The driver of the car, Lloyd L. Welch Jr., 28, suffered multiple facial lacerations and possible internal injuries.

WESTMINSTER, Md. (AP)—A new State Police barracks in Westminster, a colonial brick structure of 2½ stories, will be ready for occupancy by March.

It will serve as headquarters for State Police operations in all of Carroll County and portions of Baltimore and Howard counties. The Randallstown barracks now serving the area will become an outpost of Westminster.

BALTIMORE (AP)—Maryland's older residents were urged Sunday to arrange for a dental examination this month even if they have no teeth.

"Many persons over 65 need treatment for diseases which affect gum tissues or the jawbone," said Dr. Douglas A. Browning, president of the Maryland State Dental Association.

He said reports indicated that some of the workers in those drives may be turning in fictitious names "for easy personal profit as well as for other purposes."

The U. S. attorneys were directed to examine every complaint to determine if a violation of federal law is involved.

The fuss in Baltimore County started after Republicans complained that some 700 of 1,000 letters sent to new voters on the county's registration lists were returned to the Post Office as undeliverable.

The weekend victory predictions were made by Thomas B. Finan, state Democratic chairman, and D. Eldred Rinehart, GOP state chairman.

"We know one thing for certain," Finan said, "and that is that the country is assured a Democratic House and Senate for the next four years and it will be to the best interest and welfare of the nation that we have a Democratic President to work with them."

"Unquestionably, Maryland's seven Democratic congressmen will be elected," Finan said.

Rinehart saw it differently.

"On the eve of election day," he said, "it appears that the Nixon-Lodge ticket has gained a substantial lead in Maryland."

"The Republican party will not allow itself to be overconfident, and it is determined to continue working at full force until the last vote is counted."

"We are particularly encouraged by the extremely fine prospects of our congressional candidates," he said, predicting a "substantial" Republican representation in the new Congress.

The Democrats announced that Gov. Tawes and Baltimore's Mayor J. Harold Grady will make a 15-minute election eve television broadcast. The Republicans plan no such last-minute TV appeal.

Some political leaders say about 80 per cent of Maryland's eligible voters will go to the polls Tuesday. The state's official registration list totals more than 1,300,000 with nine presidential electoral votes in the balance.

Despite the public predictions of sweeping victory, leaders in both camps privately forecast a close contest.

Democrat John F. Kennedy generally is seen as the favorite over Vice President Richard M. Nixon, providing Kennedy carries Baltimore big enough to offset Nixon's expected strength elsewhere in the state.

Democrats hold better than a 2-1 edge in registrations but the state has not gone Democratic in a presidential election since 1944.

Voters will be faced with a long ballot Tuesday. In addition to the presidential race, they will choose seven congressmen, vote on 15 proposed amendments to the Maryland constitution and decide whether to ratify a new Potomac River Compact with Virginia.

There are also some hot local questions, and there are judicious races in Baltimore City and Baltimore County.

Three Deaths Boost Traffic Count To 434

By The Associated Press

Two pedestrians and a pregnant mother were killed over the weekend, increasing the death toll on Maryland highways to 434, 11 less than over a comparable period in 1959.

A Janesville, N. Y. truck driver also died in Washington County Hospital, Hagerstown, on Friday, suffered in an accident near Injuria near Buckeystown, Frederick County.

One of the pedestrians was Arthur B. Barcart of Baltimore. The 50-year-old man was struck in Baltimore and was taken to South Baltimore General Hospital where he was pronounced dead early Sunday.

State Police said Barcart was hit by a car operated by Samuel Deronda Samuels, 17, of Baltimore.

The other pedestrian was a 65-year-old Baltimore man who was hit by an automobile in College Park, in Prince Georges County. Charles A. Johnson was struck by an auto operated by John Allen Hewitt of College Park, State Police said.

The mother was killed Saturday night when the car driven by her husband ran off the road and rammmed a utility pole.

State Police said Mrs. Margaret Anne Welch, 22, of Jessup was thrown from the car. She was dead on arrival at St. Agnes Hospital. Her husband, two children and a sister also were injured.

The accident occurred near Annapolis Junction in Anne Arundel County, police said. The driver of the car, Lloyd L. Welch Jr., 28, suffered multiple facial lacerations and possible internal injuries.

Lloyd L. Welch Jr., 4, suffered lacerations and a broken leg. Michael Anthony Welch, 3, abrasions and a fractured leg, and Patricia Dull, 8, of Waterloo, severe head laceration and internal injuries.

The truck driver was David J. Henderson, 30. State Police at Frederick said he was driving a tractor-trailer truck north on Maryland 15, when he swerved to avoid striking a deer, lost control of his truck and struck a tree.

Other weekend highway deaths included:

Pierre Fleishauer, Salisbury, killed when a car jumped the center safety island on U. S. 13 near Salisbury and crashed into a utility pole.

Clifton D. Bell, 34, Baltimore, killed when a car struck him and his wife as they walked across Harford Road. His wife, Mrs. Audrey Bell, 43, was critically injured.

Maryland Briefs

WESTMINSTER, Md. (AP)—A new State Police barracks in Westminster, a colonial brick structure of 2½ stories, will be ready for occupancy by March.

It will serve as headquarters for State Police operations in all of Carroll County and portions of Baltimore and Howard counties. The Randallstown barracks now serving the area will become an outpost of Westminster.

BALTIMORE (AP)—Maryland's older residents were urged Sunday to arrange for a dental examination this month even if they have no teeth.

"Many persons over 65 need treatment for diseases which affect gum tissues or the jawbone," said Dr. Douglas A. Browning, president of the Maryland State Dental Association.

The drive to have each of Maryland's 215,000 residents over 65 set up physical and dental check-ups during November is labeled "Appointment With Health."

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP)—sions and a fractured leg, and Patricia Dull, 8, of Waterloo, severe head laceration and internal injuries.

The truck driver was David J. Henderson, 30. State Police at Frederick said he was driving a tractor-trailer truck north on Maryland 15, when he swerved to avoid striking a deer, lost control of his truck and struck a tree.

Pressman Accepts Byrd Potomac Pact Challenge

BALTIMORE (AP)—Hyman A. Sen. Dorsey began his critique Pressman, a Baltimore attorney of Dr. Byrd by maintaining that representing a group of Southern the letters sent to watermen were Maryland watermen who oppose prepared and mailed at State ex-a proposed Potomac River Compact.

The challenge was contained in a letter sent to 6,000 watermen in direction of the Department of Charles and St. Mary's counties by the chairman - director of the Tide Water Fisheries Commission, Dr. H.C. Byrd.

In a reply to Dr. Byrd, Pressman said, "Maryland would be giving away its last hope and its last bargaining position for pre- vailing on Virginia to practice conservation in the lower Chesapeake Bay."

"Maryland also would be giving away part of its sovereignty over the Maryland-owned Potomac River by consenting to Marylanders being tried in Virginia courts for alleged violations on the Potomac River."

Pressman reciprocated with a challenge "of my own."

"I challenge you (Dr. Byrd) to name one thing which has happened between the time you came out against the Potomac River Compact and the time you came out for it which justifies your complete reversal of position."

The compact, drafted in 1958 as a replacement for a 1785 agreement with Virginia which Maryland abrogated, would place the Potomac River's fish and oyster resources under a bi-state commission for the first time.

A new compact comes up for ratification in Tuesday's election.

In another weekend development, State Sen. Walter B. Dorsey, D-St. Marys, said he believed Dr. Byrd was violating the law by holding dual positions of chairman of the TFC and director of the Department of Tidewater Fisheries.

Then, he said, "Dr. Byrd defrauds the watermen of our state because of his selfish desire to usurp all authority, control and direction of the Department of Tidewater Fisheries."

The St. Marys County Democrat said the fisheries director defies the intent of the Legislature which created the two positions.

Sen. Dorsey said the intent was "to insure that a trained expert in the field of marine life and conservation practices would be employed to revive our dwindling seafood industry."

He added, "... yet Dr. Byrd, on numerous occasions has publicly confessed that he is totally unfamiliar with many of the problems confronting him, serves in two capacities."

"Dr. Byrd's record as director and chairman suggests that he should remove his residence from the State yacht to the State university where he compiled an enervated record in the construction of buildings," Dr. Byrd is a former president of the University of Maryland.

Among his objections to the Potomac agreement with Virginia, Sen. Dorsey listed:

1. Maryland watermen would be giving away their constitutional safeguard to be tried in Maryland courts for offenses committed in Maryland.

2. Since Virginia would be giving equal authority, Maryland would be giving away its rights to solely administer and regulate the catching of fin and shellfish.

Sen. Dorsey said Maryland should hold out for an agreement which provides for the related problems of the Potomac River and the Chesapeake Bay.

FOLEY HAS DONE MORE FOR YOU IN CONGRESS

John Foley, the United States Congressman from Maryland's Sixth District, has one of the most impressive records ever compiled by a first term Congressman. He has had a nearly perfect attendance record (over 95%) and voting record (over 97%).

Here are some of the things John Foley has done for the people of the Sixth District:

- Because he knows the problems of those who have to work for a living, John Foley has been sensitive to the need for jobs in Washington, Allegany and Garrett counties. He introduced, early in the session, a companion bill to the Area Redevelopment Act passed by Congress and vetoed by the President which would have made loans and grants available for new industry, for retraining workers, and for aid to hard-hit small businesses. He will continue this fight in the next Congress.
- The only congressional member of the Maryland State Civil War Centennial Commission, he secured passage of the historic Antietam Battlefield preservation bill that will result in a $2,000,000 federal investment by 1965.
- He helped win the long over-due pay raise and passage of legislation granting federal employees a voluntary health insurance plan. As a member of the House Post Office and Civil Service Committee he co-sponsored both measures. In December, 1959, he visited 90 Sixth District post offices.
- As a member of the House District of Columbia Committee he worked on behalf of regional legislation to improve the area in which many of the Sixth District residents work.

He brought the service of U.S. Congressman to the people by opening offices in Cumberland, Hagerstown, and Rockville where he has devoted himself to discussing governmental problems with those he represents. More than 2,000 requests for assistance have been handled efficiently and promptly.

He secured passage of historic legislation taking a long first step toward solving the transportation problem of people living in Montgomery County. The Metropolitan Washington Area Transit Compact makes possible uniform fare and transfer arrangements, as well as the convenience of joint operation of routes by more than one company, and provides the basis for coordinated traffic engineering.

In his first 30 days in the House of Representatives John Foley introduced two bills for federal assistance to local governments in meeting desperate school needs. During his first term in office more than $4,000,000 was provided by the federal government for public schools in the district.

RE-ELECT JOHN R. FOLEY DEMOCRAT

By authority of the Foley for Congress Committee, Saul I. Stern, treasurer.

Contractors Speed Work At FSTC Campus

A race against time is now underway at Frostburg State Teachers College as Orrie Sensabaugh, contractor and The Vandegrift Construction Company work at top speed before winter weather sets in and halts all outdoor work until next Spring. Sensabaugh has the contract for ground improvement which includes grading around Thomas G. Pullen School, construction of connecting roads (seen in center of picture) with the school and parking lot at rear of Compton Hall, (top left of picture). Ground in front right as well as other areas about the school has been sodded. Work in the area from the top right of the picture to Compton Hall is being done by Vandegrift as he prepares footers for the new womens dormitory to be constructed in that area. At the left center, back of truck, may be seen part of the fencing about an outdoor play area for the graded school. Outdoor basketball banking boards have been installed. The area has been black-topped and completely enclosed with a high steel fence.

GOP Women Rally At Kitzmiller

KITZMILLER — Last Thurs-day evening, the Garrett County Republican Women's Club held its final meeting of the year at Kitzmiller. Final plans were made for the Maryland-Delaware-District of an all-out effort on election day Columbia convocation of the Women of the Moose at Glen Burnie recently.

Telephone committees are set up in each district, calling up the voters, inquiring concerning trans-portion, need for baby sitters, etc. Volunteer checkers will serve in polling places.

Twelve dozen Nixon hats and about $500 worth of Republican jewelry and cooky cutters were sold by club members. Members have served in Republican head-quarters, and coffee will be served today and Tuesday. Members suggest that housewives vote early in the day, thereby clearing the polls for working men and farm-ers who come in later.

The Girl Scouts of Oakland will help with baby sitting or any other needed service. Republican headquarters telephone number is DEertfield 4-2175.

After the merger is in effect the Pennsylvania State Depart-ment of Public Instruction will pay an additional appropriation of $6400 per year each year there-after.

In a merged district all assets, liabilities and property of the in-dividual districts become the re-sponsibility of the merged dis-trict.

Tax rates will become uniform throughout the merged district. Any differences in liabilities be-tween the two districts will be equalized by the additional ap-proportionment received.

By voting for the merger the districts are very much in line with the Department of Public Instruction's ideas on the for-mation of larger districts and form-ing better educational systems.

School Question Before Voters At Hyndman

HYNDMAN, Pa. — Tomorrow, citizens of Hyndman Borough and Londonderry Township will have an opportunity to vote on the proposed merger of the two school districts. A special ballot at the regular polling places will be included with presidential ballots.

If the majority of voters in both districts are in favor of the merger, then on July 3, 1961, both school districts will become one school district and will operate as one school district.

There will be one school board, one secretary, and one treasurer. The present directors will hold their offices until their terms are concluded, then by 1965 there will be five school directors, one elected from each district and three elected at large from both districts and representing the merged district.

After the merger is in effect the Pennsylvania State Department of Public Instruction will pay an additional appropriation of $6400 per year each year thereafter.

In a merged district all assets, liabilities and property of the individual districts become the responsibility of the merged district.

Tax rates will become uniform throughout the merged district. Any differences in liabilities between the two districts will be equalized by the additional appropriation received.

By voting for the merger the districts are very much in line with the Department of Public Instruction's ideas on the formation of larger districts and forming better educational systems.

Band Wins Cole Trophy

MT. SAVAGE — The Mt. Savage High School band was awarded the Ward K. Cole trophy as the best participating high school band in the annual homecoming parade of Frostburg State Teachers College. The band led by Charles Wilhelm as drum major, numbers approximately 25 members and is directed by Thomas Lewis. The group has participated in several outside events recently. A feature attraction is the full authentic dress Indian uniform worn by the drum major as a symbol of the school nickname "Indians."

Having served as your sheriff from 1952 to 1956, I feel capable, qualified and experienced to perform the duties of this office in a manner that will be a credit to all.

I invite you to inquire about my record as your sheriff and I promise if elected to perform the duties of this office to the best of my ability. Thank you and don't forget to vote.

Foley Doesn't 'Need' Allegany County

At a press conference in Washington three weeks ago today, Rep. John R. Foley made a comment that should be enlightening to Allegany County's voters. He said he didn't need their help to win the Sixth District Congressional election. The Washington Daily News of October 18 said "He seemed willing to do without one GOP stronghold, Allegany County." The newspaper quoted Mr. Foley as saying:

"We really don't have to carry them. I won without them before."

Judging by some of his actions in Congress, it would seem that Mr. Foley has decided he doesn't need the rest of the Sixth District either. We are all familiar with his failure to get the C&O Canal Parkway bill out of committee when his own party controlled the House of Representatives by nearly a two-to-one majority, while Republican Senator J. Glenn Beall, on the small end of a similar majority in the Senate, was getting his C&O Canal bill passed—not once, but twice. Obviously, Mr. Foley's inept guidance of the House bill was responsible for its failure. The Washington Post also blamed "personal animosities." But if a legislator is the object of such feelings, whether justified or not, how can he do an effective job in an atmosphere where cooperation is essential?

The C&O Canal bill, although it is but one example, was important to the whole Sixth District. When it failed and Rep. Foley was criticized by Senator Beall for his clumsy handling of the bill, he tried to dump the whole thing back into the Senator's lap by saying that, had Beall intervened, the House would have acted. The plain truth is that Mr. Foley was carrying the ball and he fumbled it.

It was this sort of legislative awkwardness that caused an Allegany County leader to charge Rep. Foley publicly with "dilly-dallying."

It is probably just as well that Mr. Foley has come to the conclusion that he doesn't need Allegany County. We think he's about to learn that Allegany County doesn't need him.

Campaign - VIII

The decision in 1960 puzzles the pollsters because of the enormous size of the uncommitted voters. Actually, it is unbelievable that so many voters should not, by now, know whether they are going to vote for Nixon or Kennedy. Why, then, do they not declare themselves?

In the first place, many state that they are uncertain because they favor or oppose one or the other for reasons which they themselves reject subconsciously. Among such emotional responses are the religious issue, the beauty contest, the glibness of the debates.

Thus, the uncommitted voter is holding off saying how he is going to vote because he anticipates that he may make a last moment change. Usually, in Presidential elections, there are few last moment changes. James Farley goes by the rule that the voter's decision is generally made just after the Conventions. That has not been true this year.

New York State, with its 45 electoral votes, is a big prize in this campaign. Vice President Nixon left the management of that state to Governor Rockefeller and Senator Jacob Javits. It was most unfortunate because neither of them has done anything like an adequate job for Richard Nixon. Senator Javits knows New York City politics and the very complicated racial and religious complex of this largest city of the nation. At no point did Nixon act politically sound in New York City. Professionals of both parties say that he was sabotaged both as to timing and as to the centers he visited.

If Vice President Nixon carries New York City or New York State, it will be because of the religious issue. Unfortunately this was revived by two factors: One, the insistence of the Puerto Rican Roman Catholic bishops that it is a sin to vote for Governor Luis Munoz Marin because he favors birth control and secular schools. No matter what happens in Puerto Rico, the attention paid to the activities of these bishops on two Sundays, the failure of the Vatican to denounce them, and the widespread use of their activities by Republican propaganda unquestionably helped Nixon.

The other factor is that various organizations of bigots have accelerated their propaganda of hate. Many Catholics who dislike John Kennedy dislike even more the anti-Catholic propaganda. They will vote for Kennedy not because they prefer Kennedy as much as they take umbrage at anti-Catholicism.

Those who are conducting the anti-Catholic propaganda are not Republicans. They are Protestants who sincerely and fanatically believe that the Roman Curia dictates the conduct of every government headed by a Catholic. Religious movements usually run deep and when they come to the surface, their impetus can be riotous. It is unfortunate that at a time like this, in world affairs, such a question should arise in the United States. It is not likely to die down soon. For what has been raised in this campaign are many local issues, such as the large increase in parochial schools and high schools, the use of public buses by children going to parochial schools, tax exemption for church property, etc., etc. These questions have nothing to do with the Presidential campaign but they are the side effects of the hate campaign against Catholicism.

Should John Kennedy be elected, the Republican Party will immediately face a battle for control between Senator Barry Goldwater, the Conservative leader, and Governor Nelson Rockefeller who will move to the left of the Democrats. Whereas Goldwater's conception of the loyal opposition will be for Congress to put a brake on the expenditures of an inflationary Democratic Administration, Rockefeller is likely to contend that the Democrats are not doing enough. Most of the remaining Republicans will follow Goldwater, but Rockefeller will immediately put his presently quiescent organization in high gear to capture the 1964 nomination of his party.

A Nixon victory would, at any rate, continue the Eisenhower-Nixon image of the party: a Nixon defeat would also be an Eisenhower defeat. The Conservatives, under Goldwater, would seek Democratic support because Republican Conservatives are weary of being associated with radical Keynesian Republicans such as Senators Jacob Javits, Clifford Case, etc. They want a party which can have a clear-cut, distinct, meaningful program. They will, wherever they can, form an alliance with Conservative Democrats. They will therefore watch the vote in Virginia more closely than the vote in New York; to them Texas is more significant than California.

'Look - He Thinks Ike Can Help Him'

Polls Bear Out Theory Of 'Catholic Vote'

By David Lawrence

WASHINGTON — The biggest news in the Presidential campaign really is the so-called religious issue. Many people have felt it should not enter into the campaign — but the politicians decided otherwise. They have made use of it to their own advantage on both sides.

The preponderant evidence thus far is that the trend in voting on the part of Catholics toward Senator Kennedy has resulted in the largest single percentage shift of any group of voters in the campaign.

After having published an analysis to that effect earlier in the week, based on the latest Gallup Poll, this writer today finds confirming reports from various quarters. Thus, in The New York Times, John Wickline, news analyst, concludes a special election report as follows:

"With the violent outcry against Senator Kennedy from conservative preachers at the outset of the campaign, political observers thought his religion was going to finish him. The consensus now is that Senator Kennedy will gain more than he loses because of the religious issue."

Chalmers M. Roberts, staff reporter of the Washington Post, writing from Los Angeles, refers to the California poll, conducted by Marvin D. Field for a number of papers in that state, and says: "On Tuesday, the poll concluded from an analysis of the vote by religions that there seems to be indicated 'a possible net gain for Kennedy' because 'Kennedy's margin among Catholics and other non-Protestants is more than 3 to 1, while balanced against this is the fact that among Protestants Nixon is favored by only about a 3-to-2 margin.' About a fourth of the California electorate is Catholic."

Samuel Lubell, political analyst for the Scripps-Howard Newspapers, has written several articles emphasizing the shift to Kennedy by Catholic voters. He wrote on October 26 with respect to California:

"Los Angeles County has roughly 1,000,000 Catholics among its population. The Catholics interviewed voted 63 per cent for Eisenhower. They were giving Nixon only 29 per cent of their vote — a heavy enough shift to balance off Kennedy losses among Protestant voters. This Catholic shift in the Los Angeles area is about the same proportion as one finds in the whole country."

Mr. Lubell also wrote earlier: "Of these pro-Eisenhower Catholics in 14 states, nearly one-half is switching to Kennedy."

In a recently published book, "The Catholic Vote," by James H. Fenton, general manager of the Gallup Poll, this issue is discussed in detail. The book was written before the Presidential primaries, but a postscript was added after the West Virginia primary, which was regarded by many writers as having squelched the religious issue as a factor. But Mr. Fenton says otherwise. He writes:

"However, even though there was little evidence of a Protestant vote against Kennedy, there was evidence of a Catholic vote in his support. In the northern steel-manufacturing section of the state where most of West Virginia's Catholic population is concentrated, the vote for Kennedy was particularly decisive. For example, Kennedy carried Ohio County by a four-to-one margin, a county which is dominated by Wheeling, which is about one-half Catholic."

But who started it all? The answer is that the politicians saw in the issue vote-getting possibilities both ways. The first public evidence of the use of statistics on religion at a national convention was noticeable in a document of several thousands of words prepared on behalf of Senator Kennedy. This study was published in the August 10, 1956, issue of "U.S. News & World Report." The magazine's introductory note says:

"With the Democratic Convention at hand, backers of Senator John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts are in a nation-wide drive to nominate him for Vice President. . . . John M. Bailey, Democratic state chairman of Connecticut, is using a private study of voting trends, made by Kennedy backers, to try to win party officials at all levels over to the support of the Massachusetts Senator."

"The study goes back to 1940 to analyze election results in 14 states where, it claims, the votes cast by Catholics can be decisive."

"Here is the analysis that has been put in the hands of political writers and others in the final days of the pre-convention campaign."

The memorandum itself was a potent factor in the discussions behind the scenes at the 1956 Democratic convention in Chicago, when, to the surprise of many, Senator Kennedy came within a few votes of winning the Vice Presidential nomination. The document has been circulated in the 1960 campaign, too.

The most important part of the memorandum is a table, showing statistically how, by "recapturing" the Catholic vote by putting a Catholic on the ticket, 14 Northern states — with a total of 261 electoral votes, — could be swung to the Democrats.

The theory set forth by the authors of the memorandum is that the usual margin between the two major political parties is relatively slim and that, if a shift of any considerable percentage of the Catholic vote can be achieved, it would swing the election. The memorandum concedes that on the opposite side of the issue there would be a swing of Protestant Democrats toward the Republican ticket because of the religious issue. But the main point is that, because of the concentration of Catholics in the cities of Northern states with big electoral votes, the shift is likely to be more beneficial to the Democrats.

TEACHERS' SALARIES — Both Presidential candidates have spoken urgently about the need for increasing the pay of America's teachers. Both have said this is the No. 1 problem facing U.S. education today. Many independent experts agree.

The problem of using federal money to raise teachers' pay is much deeper than either would have the public believe, however.

In the last session of Congress, legislators were unable to win approval for a measure that would have provided about $300 million in federal funds to help needy school districts build new schools.

Proponents of this measure hoped that providing the funds would free money in the local districts to increase teachers' pay.

There are 1,200,000 teachers in the public school systems of the country. If as much as half of the $300 million could have gone to hike their pay, it would figure out to something under $3 a week more for each one.

In other words, if the federal government is going to step in and raise teachers' pay, it is going to take a really massive infusion of money, something over a billion dollars a year on a permanent basis!

Adhesions After Surgery Not Always Serious

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

We were pleased when Mary recovered from an abdominal operation and returned to work as fit as ever. During the next few months she gained in strength and vigor.

Suddenly, one Sunday morning, she awakened with nausea and severe intestinal cramping. At the hospital, X-rays showed evidence of bowel obstruction and operation was in order. The surgeon found the small intestine pinched off by a band of ad-hesions. The involved area was like an inflated balloon squeezed in the middle by a rubber band.

Adhesions are bands of scar tissue that form whenever the smooth and delicate lining of the abdominal wall and organs is irritated, infected, bruised, rubbed, or cut. These cobweb-like bands that form between loops of bowel are harmless unless they become tight enough to pinch off the intestine.

In this respect, adhesions no longer are blamed for every twinge of pain or indefinite symptom that follows surgery. They are serious only when they lead to obstruction of the colon.

The chances of developing adhesions are minimized when the surgeon handles the tissues with the utmost delicacy and follows good surgical principles to the letter. He must even remove the powder from his rubber gloves because it could prove irritating if it gets into the abdomen.

But adhesions develop in some, regardless of surgical skill. How can new adhesions be prevented when surgery is needed to correct a bowel obstruction from old adhesions? This complication can be discouraged by cutting the bands with a cautery and using a drug such as hyaluronidase or prostigmine.

TOMORROW: Ample coronary circulation.

HEART FLUFFLOPS
F. K. writes: Every evening on going to bed I have a 20 to 30 minute bout of extrasystoles. My doctor says I need not be concerned but I'm wondering if this is a form of heart disease.

REPLY
These extra beats occur in the normal heart as well as the abnormal. They are most noticeable when the heart slows down. Too much coffee, tea, or tobacco may play a role. But your heart is normal if irregularity is the only finding.

Kennedy's Father Helped Refugees From Pre-War Nazi Persecutions

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON — Last summer old Joe Kennedy, father of the Presidential candidate, dropped the word to Walter Winchell in New York that Drew Pearson topped his "revenge list" for action after the election. Joe resented the quotes I had previously published from reports to the Nazi Foreign Office regarding his conversations with the German ambassador in London indicating that he was soft on Hitler.

Those who know me, know I don't run away from a fight. And if Joe wants to put me on his revenge list, it's an honor. However, I do want to be fair. And I have now turned up some further information showing that in 1938 Kennedy performed an important job in helping those who were persecuted by Hitler.

While ambassador in London, he persuaded the British government to open various parts of Africa and Australia to Jewish refugees from Germany, also intervened successfully with Argentina, Brazil, Venezuela and Paraguay to increase their Jewish quotas.

On February 27, 1939 State Department records show that Kennedy had a conference with Lord Halifax, British Foreign Secretary, to urge that there be no modification of the Balfour Declaration favoring a Jewish state and no restriction on Jewish migration to Palestine.

The aftermath of that conference has been forgotten. But here is some of the criticism heaped on Old Joe as a result of his London talks: New Britain (Cona.) Herald, 3.2.39: "What right has the United States to tell England what to do when they wish to regulate Jews to a minority status?" . . . Hugh Patterson in the Nashville Journal, 3.11.39: "Ambassador Kennedy has embarrassed the British government." . . . New York Herald Tribune, 2.28.39: "It is not practical politics for the United States to take into its own hands the inordinate mess into which the British have got themselves." . . . London, Ont., Free Press, 4.19.39: "The man most hated by dictators, next to Roosevelt, is Ambassador Kennedy." . . . Finally on April 21, 1939, Dr. Goebbels, in a press interview, referred to Kennedy as "a master conspirator in a plot to add the United States to an iron ring around Germany."

Therefore, Old Joe Kennedy, though soft on Hitler at first, tried to make up for it later. And it's only fair for me to say so.

Teachers For Congress

Schoolteachers are playing a bigger role in the job of making democracy live. Congress used to be packed with lawyers, still is top-heavy with them. But schoolteachers are coming up, and one of the outstanding freshman Senators last year was a University of Wyoming history professor — Gale McGee.

This year another history professor, Dr. Herbert Hill of Dartmouth, may make history in his race to defeat veteran GOP Sen. Styles Bridges in New Hampshire. A former University of South Dakota professor, now Congressman George McGovern, is giving the fight of his life to old guard Sen. Karl Mundt in South Dakota.

And Norman Hass, a teacher in the Los Angeles secondary schools, is taking time off for an uphill battle to unseat Rep. Glenn Lipscomb in the Republican 24th District of Southern California. My eldest grandson, who studies under Mr. Hass, describes him as a "cool" teacher, an adjective unconnected with the cold war which seems to connote some kind of juvenile praise. At any rate, Mr. Hass, who has to teach his students how to make democracy live, has decided to go out and work at it himself, too.

The Nixon Restaurants

The Long Beach, Calif., Independent and Press-Telegram has come up with an interesting photo of the Vice President's close link with the operation.

It's a photo taken August 28, 1956 of the Vice President and his brother Don at the Fullerton Nixon restaurant in the act of signing a union contract. The contract was to become effective September 18, 1956, but the photo was taken early for publicity purposes.

It was on April 5 of that same year that Richard M. Nixon's name was listed with the California Corporation Commission among 12 proposed stockholders in the restaurant chain. In September of that same year, Morgan and Co., a Los Angeles brokerage firm, circulated a Nixon stock offer to the Young Republicans of Los Angeles. When this was not successful the loan from Howard Hughes was signed December 10 of that year.

Election Hot Spots
Here are some of the hottest spots to watch in the Senate and Congressional races around the nation.

In Michigan Congressman Alvin Bentley, grandson of one of the founders of General Motors and heavy contributor to Joe McCarthy, is battling to unseat the only AFL member of the Senate, Pat McNamara. It's a straight battle between labor and big business with Bentley following a conservative line in the House, McNamara a liberal line in the Senate. All sorts of money has poured in to help defeat the only labor union member of the Senate.

In the Niagara Falls, N. Y., area, Congressman William Miller, Rep., is having to worry about his original championship of civil rights, then his ditching of civil rights for a Dixiecrat deal to scuttle the Niagara Falls Power Bill. Mariano Lucca, editor of the Buffalo Beacon, is throwing the book at Miller.

Another Miller, Edward T., from Maryland, is trying to stage a comeback on the Eastern Shore, aided by Du Pont and other big Republican money. Republicans are so anxious to elect him that Roger Morton, brother of GOF chairman Thruston Morton, was sent to act as public relations expert. Miller's best-remembered Congressional achievement was to spend $1,450 of extra transportation to Europe on a 1955 junket.

In Connecticut, brass hats are lining up with Republicans to undercut Congressman Frank Kowalski, the man who unearthed the Air Force manual on how to wash an officer's dog. Kowalski has done more for GIs than any recent Congressman, but the brass hats don't like him.

On Long Island, GOP Congressman Steve Derounian has been confronted with two Army intelligence men who testified that he coddled Dr. Edward V. Sittler, the American Nazi, when Derounian was in charge of a prisoner of war camp in Germany. Sittler, born in Ohio, went to Germany, renounced his American citizenship, became a member of the Nazi Party and broadcast for Hitler. Two ex-GIs claim Captain Derounian gave the American Nazi, then a prisoner, favored treatment. Derounian is flailing his arms, biting his nails.

KEY BISCAYNE, Miami—Everywhere I go, people say that business is a little off. They mean slow. Not much. Just a shade. It's probably the election. It used to be, in the days of the red fire torchlight processions, that business went on as usual by day, and everyone electioneered like mad at night.

Now, every community feels that its future is hooked to one candidate or another. They love one; hate the other. The one they despise will "ruin the country."

This isn't so. The President can make errors, but the Congress reserves to itself the right to ruin the country.

The election has a bearing on international relations. International relations have a bearing on the stock market. The stock market has a bearing on automobiles and steel mills and shipping companies and television and dairy products. These have a bearing on business, large and small.

I drove down from Jacksonville to Port St. Lucie, and from there to Miami. The Sunshine State Parkway is like a billiard table several hundred miles long. It was warm and sunny and the new convertible went through the showers so fast that the top stayed down and the raindrops merely dampened the laundry on the back seat.

One man in a gas station had six pumps and no gasoline. "Plumb out," he said. He was plumb out of more than gas. I drove out to Key Biscayne and bought some liquor for my friends. "Best customer I had all day," said the lady in the slit Chinese gown. "Except one pint of gin this morning."

Before I left home, I talked to a few merchants in Rockaway and Coney Island, in Long Branch and Asbury Park, and they told me that the summer weather had been good, but that business was off. Now I get the same story here. This Key (or island) is south of Miami Beach and the few friends I spoke to told me that business in the big hotels is sagging a bit. Why not? The season hasn't started. Miami traffic is like Times Square except that it is a lot more orderly. The are cars everywhere. The people in them must use gasoline and they must eat and dress.

The people never looked better. I can't tell, at a glance, a bricklayer from a retired millionaire. They all have big cars, their wives have furs, their children dress to the chin, they own their own homes, they have T.V. sets, radios, nice furniture, full refrigerators—some people would find fault with heaven.

The billboards advertise so many products that my head swims. The newspapers look fat and prosperous. The television stations have so many advertisers that they run two or three commercials at a time. Ten thousand commercial airplanes take off every day, loaded with passengers.

What's wrong? Nothing. We've become a nation of whiners. When business is good, we say it's "So so." If it's spectacular, we say: "I've got my fingers crossed." When it's normal, we say: "It's thirty percent off and I'm facing bankruptcy."

I'm in a villa at the Key Biscayne and the side window faces the little pitch and putt golf course along the edge of the sea. I have never seen so many well-fed, fat nommas in my life. They wear saffron shorts. The men, who worked their way up to a lush vacation like this, sport wild shirts and Hawaiian shorts and sandals. They stroke the little white ball as though they're about to have one.

If business is bad, what the heck are they doing here? On inquiry, I find that it is difficult to get a room. Not only here, but in many of the hotels. This is only the second week in November. The cars have license plates from all over the Union.

In my little town — Sea Bright, N.J. — I heard Nils Jacobsen, a councilman, say that he could no longer get men to work in the streets for $1.25 an hour at common labor. The men who were available wouldn't take it, and this went for teen-age boys too.

Who's kidding whom? This is the most favored nation in the most favored century. Don't knock it. Don't knock business. Even a great country can talk itself into symptoms of illness by taking its own pulse too frequently.

It should be this bad in Russia. . . .

Campaign - VIII

The decision in 1960 puzzles the pollsters because of the enormous size of the uncommitted voters. Actually, it is unbelievable that so many voters should not, by now, know whether they are going to vote for Nixon or Kennedy. Why, then, do they not declare themselves?

In the first place, many state that they are uncertain because they favor or oppose one or the other for reasons which they themselves reject subconsciously. Among such emotional responses are the religious issue, the beauty contest, the glibness of the debates.

Thus, the uncommitted voter is holding off saying how he is going to vote because he anticipates that he may make a last moment change. Usually, in Presidential elections, there are few last moment changes. James Farley goes by the rule that the voter's decision is generally made just after the Conventions. That has not been true this year.

New York State, with its 45 electoral votes, is a big prize in this campaign. Vice President Nixon left the management of that state to Governor Rockefeller and Senator Jacob Javits. It was most unfortunate because neither of them has done anything like an adequate job for Richard Nixon. Senator Javits knows New York City politics and the very complicated racial and religious complex of this largest city of the nation. At no point did Nixon act politically sound in New York City. Professionals of both parties say that he was sabotaged both as to timing and as to the centers he visited.

If Vice President Nixon carries New York City or New York State, it will be because of the religious issue. Unfortunately this was revived by two factors: One, the insistence of the Puerto Rican Roman Catholic bishops that it is a sin to vote for Governor Luis Munoz Marin because he favors birth control and secular schools. No matter what happens in Puerto Rico, the attention paid to the activities of these bishops on two Sundays, the failure of the Vatican to denounce them, and the widespread use of their activities by Republican propaganda unquestionably helped Nixon.

The other factor is that various organizations of bigots have accelerated their propaganda of hate. Many Catholics who dislike John Kennedy dislike even more the anti-Catholic propaganda. They will vote for Kennedy not because they prefer Kennedy as much as they take umbrage at anti-Catholicism.

Those who are conducting the anti-Catholic propaganda are not Republicans. They are Protestants who sincerely and fanatically believe that the Roman Curia dictates the conduct of every government headed by a Catholic. Religious movements usually run deep and when they come to the surface, their impetus can be riotous. It is unfortunate that at a time like this, in world affairs, such a question should arise in the United States. It is not likely to die down soon. For what has been raised in this campaign are many local issues, such as the large increase in parochial schools and high schools, the use of public buses by children going to parochial schools, tax exemption for church property, etc., etc. These questions have nothing to do with the Presidential campaign but they are the side effects of the hate campaign against Catholicism.

Should John Kennedy be elected, the Republican Party will immediately face a battle for control between Senator Barry Goldwater, the Conservative leader, and Governor Nelson Rockefeller who will move to the left of the Democrats. Whereas Goldwater's conception of the loyal opposition will be for Congress to put a brake on the expenditures of an inflationary Democratic Administration, Rockefeller is likely to contend that the Democrats are not doing enough. Most of the remaining Republicans will follow Goldwater, but Rockefeller will immediately put his presently quiescent organization in high gear to capture the 1964 nomination of his party.

A Nixon victory would, at any rate, continue the Eisenhower-Nixon image of the party: a Nixon defeat would also be an Eisenhower defeat. The Conservatives, under Goldwater, would seek Democratic support because Republican Conservatives are weary of being associated with radical Keynesian Republicans such as Senators Jacob Javits, Clifford Case, etc. They want a party which can have a clear-cut, distinct, meaningful program. They will, wherever they can, form an alliance with Conservative Democrats. They will therefore watch the vote in Virginia more closely than the vote in New York; to them Texas is more significant than California.

Polls Bear Out Theory Of 'Catholic Vote'

By David Lawrence

WASHINGTON — The biggest news in the Presidential campaign really is the so-called religious issue. Many people have felt it should not enter into the campaign — but the politicians decided otherwise. They have made use of it to their own advantage on both sides.

The preponderant evidence thus far is that the trend in voting on the part of Catholics toward Senator Kennedy has resulted in the largest single percentage shift of any group of voters in the campaign.

After having published an analysis to that effect earlier in the week, based on the latest Gallup Poll, this writer today finds confirming reports from various quarters. Thus, in The New York Times, John Wickline, news analyst, concludes a special election report as follows:

"With the violent outcry against Senator Kennedy from conservative preachers at the outset of the campaign, political observers thought his religion was going to finish him. The consensus now is that Senator Kennedy will gain more than he loses because of the religion issue."

Chalmers M. Roberts, staff reporter of the Washington Post, writing from Los Angeles, refers to the California poll, conducted by Marvin D. Field for a number of papers in that state, and says:

"On Tuesday, the poll concluded from an analysis of the vote by religions that there seems to be indicated 'a possible net gain for Kennedy' because 'Kennedy's margin among Catholics and other non-Protestants is more than 3 to 1, while balanced against this is the fact that among Protestants Nixon is favored by only about a 3-to-2 margin.' About a fourth of the California electorate is Catholic."

Samuel Lubell, political analyst for the Scripps-Howard Newspapers, has written several articles emphasizing the shift to Kennedy by Catholic voters. He wrote on October 26 with respect to California:

"Los Angeles County has roughly 1,000,000 Catholics among its population. The Catholics interviewed voted 63 per cent for Eisenhower. They were giving Nixon only 29 per cent of their vote — a heavy enough shift to balance off Kennedy losses among Protestant voters. This Catholic shift in the Los Angeles area is about the same proportion as one finds in the whole country."

Mr. Lubell also wrote earlier: "Of these pro-Eisenhower Catholics in 14 states, nearly one-half is switching to Kennedy."

In a recently published book, "The Catholic Vote," by James H. Fenton, general manager of the Gallup Poll, this issue is discussed in detail. The book was written before the Presidential primaries, but a postscript was added after the West Virginia primary, which was regarded by many writers as having squelched the religious issue as a factor. But Mr. Fenton says otherwise. He writes:

"However, even though there was little evidence of a Protestant vote against Kennedy, there was evidence of a Catholic vote in his support. In the northern steel-manufacturing section of the state where most of West Virginia's Catholic population is concentrated, the vote for Kennedy was particularly decisive. For example, Kennedy carried Ohio County by a four-to-one margin, a county which is dominated by Wheeling, which is about one-half Catholic."

But who started it all? The answer is that the politicians saw in the issue vote-getting possibilities both ways. The first public evidence of the use of statistics on religion at a national convention was noticeable in a document of several thousands of words prepared on behalf of Senator Kennedy. This study was published in the August 10, 1956, issue of "U.S. News & World Report." The magazine's introductory note says:

"With the Democratic Convention at hand, backers of Senator John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts are in a nation-wide drive to nominate him for Vice President. . . . John M. Bailey, Democratic state chairman of Connecticut, is using a private study

TEACHERS' SALARIES — Both Presidential candidates have spoken urgently about the need for increasing the pay of America's teachers. Both have said this is the No. 1 problem facing U.S. education today. Many independent experts agree.

The problem of using federal money to raise teachers' pay is much deeper than either would have the public believe, however.

In the last session of Congress, legislators were unable to win approval for a measure that would have provided about $300 million in federal funds to help needy school districts build new schools.

Proponents of this measure hoped that providing the funds would free money in the local districts to increase teachers' pay.

There are 1,200,000 teachers in the public school systems of the country. If as much as half of the $300 million could have gone to hike their pay, it would figure out to something under $3 a week more for each one.

In other words, if the federal government is going to step in and raise teachers' pay, it is going to take a really massive infusion of money, something over a billion dollars a year on a permanent basis!

Adhesions After Surgery Not Always Serious

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

We were pleased when Mary recovered from an abdominal operation and returned to work as fit as ever. During the next few months she gained in strength and vigor.

Suddenly, one Sunday morning, she awakened with nausea and severe intestinal cramping. At the hospital, X-rays showed evidence of bowel obstruction and operation was in order. The surgeon found the small intestine pinched off by a band of ad-hesions. The involved area was like an inflated balloon squeezed in the middle by a rubber band.

Adhesions are bands of scar tissue that form whenever the smooth and delicate lining of the abdominal wall and organs is irritated, infected, bruised, rubbed, or cut. These cobweb-like bands that form between loops of bowel are harmless unless they become tight enough to pinch off the intestine.

In this respect, adhesions no longer are blamed for every twinge of pain or indefinite symptom that follows surgery. They are serious only when they lead to obstruction of the colon.

The chances of developing adhesions are minimized when the surgeon handles the tissues with the utmost delicacy and follows good surgical principles to the letter. He must even remove the powder from his rubber gloves because it could prove irritating if it gets into the abdomen.

But adhesions develop in some, regardless of surgical skill. How can new adhesions be prevented when surgery is needed to correct a bowel obstruction from old adhesions? This complication can be discouraged by cutting the bands with a cautery and using a drug such as hyaluronidase or prostigmine.

TOMORROW: Ample coronary circulation.

HEART FLUTTER: Every evening on going to bed I have a 20 to 30 minute bout of extrasystoles. My doctor says I need not be concerned but I'm wondering if this is a form of heart disease.

REPLY: These extra beats occur in the normal heart as well as the abnormal. They are most noticeable when the heart slows down. Too much coffee, tea, or tobacco may play a role. But your heart is normal if irregularity is the only finding.

Kennedy's Father Helped Refugees From Pre-War Nazi Persecutions

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON — Last summer old Joe Kennedy, father of the Presidential candidate, dropped the word to Walter Winchell in New York that Drew Pearson topped his "revenge list" for action after the election. Joe resented the quotes I had previously published from reports to the Nazi Foreign Office regarding his conversations with the German ambassador in London indicating that he was soft on Hitler.

Those who know me, know I don't run away from a fight. And if Joe wants to put me on his revenge list, it's an honor. However, I do want to be fair. And I have now turned up some further information showing that in 1938 Kennedy performed an important job in helping those who were persecuted by Hitler.

While ambassador in London, he persuaded the British government to open various parts of Africa and Australia to Jewish refugees from Germany, also intervened successfully with Argentina, Brazil, Venezuela and Paraguay to increase their Jewish quotas.

On February 27, 1939 State Department records show that Kennedy had a conference with Lord Halifax, British Foreign Secretary, to urge that there be no modification of the Balfour Declaration favoring a Jewish state and no restriction on Jewish migration to Palestine.

The aftermath of that conference has been forgotten. But here is some of the criticism heaped on Old Joe as a result of his London talks: New Britain (Conn.) Herald, 3-2-39: "What right has the United States to tell England what to do when they wish to regulate Jews to a minority status?" . . . Hugh Patterson in the Nashville Journal, 3-11-39: "Ambassador Kennedy has embarrassed the British government." . . . New York Herald Tribune, 2-28-39: "It is not practical politics for the United States to take into its own hands the inordinate mess into which the British have got themselves." . . . London, Ont., Free Press, 4-19-39: "The man most hated by dictators, next to Roosevelt, is Ambassador Kennedy." . . . Finally on April 21, 1939, Dr. Goebbels, in a press interview, referred to Kennedy as "a master conspirator in a plot to add the United States to an iron ring around Germany."

Therefore, Old Joe Kennedy, though soft on Hitler at first, tried to make up for it later. And it's only fair for me to say so.

Teachers For Congress

Schoolteachers are playing a bigger role in the job of making democracy live. Congress used to be packed with lawyers, still is top-heavy with them. But schoolteachers are coming up, and one of the outstanding freshman Senators last year was a University of Wyoming history professor — Gale McGee.

This year another history professor, Dr. Herbert Hill of Dartmouth, may make history in his race to defeat veteran GOP Sen. Styles Bridges in New Hampshire. A former University of South Dakota professor, now Congressman George McGovern, is giving the fight of his life to old guard Sen. Karl Mundt in South Dakota.

And Norman Hass, a teacher in the Los Angeles secondary schools, is taking time off for an uphill battle to unseat Rep. Glenn Lipscomb in the Republican 24th District of Southern California. My eldest grandson, who studies under Mr. Hass, describes him as a "cool" teacher, an adjective unconnected with the cold war which seems to connote some kind of juvenile praise. At any rate, Mr. Hass, who has to teach his students how to make democracy live, has decided to go out and work at it himself too.

KEY BISCAYNE, Miami—Everywhere I go, people say that business is a little off. They mean slow. Not much. Just a shade. It's probably the election. It used to be, in the days of the red fire torchlight processions, that business went on as usual by day, and everyone electioneered like mad at night.

Now, every community feels that its future is hooked to one candidate or another. They love one; hate the other. The one they despise will "ruin the country." This isn't so. The President can make errors, but the Congress reserves to itself the right to ruin the country.

The election has a bearing on international relations. International relations have a bearing on the stock market. The stock market has a bearing on automobiles and steel mills and shipping companies and television and dairy products. These have a bearing on business, large and small.

I drove down from Jacksonville to Port St. Lucie, and from there to Miami. The Sunshine State Parkway is like a billiard table several hundred miles long. It was warm and sunny and the new convertible went through the showers so fast that the top stayed down and the raindrops merely dampened the laundry on the back seat.

One man in a gas station had six pumps and no gasoline. "Plumb out," he said. He was plumb out of more than gas. I drove out to Key Biscayne and bought some liquor for my friends. "Best customer I had all day," said the lady in the slit Chinese gown. "Except one pint of gin this morning."

Before I left home, I talked to a few merchants in Rinkaway and Coney Island, in Long Branch and Asbury Park, and they told me that the summer weather had been good, but that business was off. Now I get the same story here. This Key (or island) is south of Miami Beach and the few friends I spoke to told me that business in the big hotels is sagging a bit. Why not? The season hasn't started. Miami traffic is like Times Square except that it is a lot more orderly. The e are cars everywhere. The people in them must use gasoline and they must eat and dress.

The people never looked better. I can't tell, at a glance, a bricklayer from a retired millionaire. They all have big cars, their wives have furs, their children dress to the chin, they own their

was taken early for publicity purposes.

It was on April 5 of that same year that Richard M. Nixon's name was listed with the California Corporation Commission among 12 proposed stockholders in the restaurant chain. In September of that same year, Morgan and Co., a Los Angeles brokerage firm, circulated a Nixon stock offer to the Young Republicans of Los Angeles. When this was not successful the loan from Howard Hughes was signed December 10 of that year.

Election Hot Spots

Here are some of the hottest spots to watch in the Senate and Congressional races around the nation:

In Michigan Congressman Alvin Bentley, grandson of one of the founders of General Motors and heavy contributor to Joe McCarthy, is battling to unseat the only AFL member of the Senate, Pat McNamara. It's a straight battle between labor and big business with Bentley following a conservative line in the House, McNamara a liberal line in the Senate. All sorts of money has poured in to help defeat the only labor union member of the Senate.

In the Niagara Falls, N. Y., area, Congressman William Miller, Rep., is having to worry about his original championship of civil rights, then his ditching of civil rights for a Dixiecrat deal to scuttle the Niagara Falls Power Bill. Mariano Lucca, editor of the Buffalo Beacon, is throwing the book at Miller.

Another Miller, Edward T., from Maryland, is trying to stage a comeback on the Eastern Shore, aided by Du Pont and other big Republican money. Republicans are so anxious to elect him that Roger Morton, brother of GOF chairman Thruston Morton, was sent to act as public relations expert. Miller's best-remembered Congressional achievement was to spend $1,450 of extra transportation to Europe on a 1955 junket.

In Connecticut, brass hats are lining up with Republicans to unseat Congressman Frank Kowalski, the man who unearthed the Air Force manual on how to wash an officer's dog. Kowalski has done more for GIs than any recent Congressman, but the brass hats don't like him.

On Long Island, GOP Congressman Steve Derouanian has been confronted with two Army intelligence men who testified that he coddled Dr. Edward V. Sittler, the American Nazi, when Derouanian was in charge of a prisoner of war camp in Germany. Sittler, born in Ohio, went to Germany, renounced his American citizenship, became a member of the Nazi Party and broadcast for Hitler. Two ex-GIs claim Captain Derouanian gave the American Nazi, then a prisoner, favored treatment. Derouanian is flailing his arms, biting his nails.

Try And Stop Me

When Joey Adams visited Israel he was impressed with many signs of progress on all sides, but remarked that he hadn't spotted a single golf course. "Golf?" shrugged his guide. "How can we have golf in a land as tiny and beleaguered as ours? One long drive could become an international incident!"

The producer of a recent Broadway comedy that had been roasted to a fare-thee-well by the critics met an old classmate and asked him, "Been to see my new show yet?" "No, and I'm not planning to go, either," was the frank reply. "I hear it's a disaster."

"Are you kidding?" countered the producer angrily. "Don't you read our ads?"

A popular restaurant in Philadelphia burned to the ground.

The owner of the eatery across the road professed to be heartbroken. "Poor Joe," he sighed. "It's the first time in three years the food's been hot enough in his dive!"

HAIR LOSS AT 80

Mrs. H. R. writes: I have beautiful long hair that is falling out and I don't know what to do. Do you think it is due to my age — 80 years?

REPLY

The hair thins with age but there are other reasons worth investigating—low metabolism and anemia, for example.

LINIMENT

J. W. writes: Does any kind of liniment penetrate the skin sufficiently to reduce stiffness after a fracture has healed?

No, but liniment makes the skin feel warm and massage increases local circulation. In this respect it helps.

TB OF SPINE

B. J. writes: What is done for Pott's disease?

REPLY

Tuberculosis of the spine is treated with the usual anti-tuberculosis drugs (PAS, streptomycin, and isoniazid). Surgery and braces may be needed to keep the vertebrae from collapsing and producing a serious deformity of the back.

ITCHING LIDS

J. J. E. writes: My eyelids are always itchy. What can be done for relief?

REPLY

Infection and allergy are the commonest causes. Consult an ophthalmologist and be cured.

To the limit of space questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Baltimore Colts, unable to hold an early 21-point lead and facing a worthless tie, winged to a winning touchdown on the arm of quarterback John Unitas for a 38-24 victory Sunday over the Green Bay Packers.

The defending world champion Colts moved back into first place in the Western Division of the National Football League with their fifth victory in seven games.

It was the second loss for the Packers in six games and dropped them into second place a step ahead of the idle Chicago Bears (3-2-1).

Fires 4 TD Passes

Unitas threw four touchdown passes and his fourth of the game, 16 yards to end Raymond Berry, with less than four minutes to play, broke a 24-24 tie.

The Colts then put the decision on ice with a 13-yard run by halfback Al Hawkins who earlier had caught a scoring pass from Unitas.

It was the 44th straight game of touchdown throwing by Unitas, who now has heaved 101 touchdowns in five years as a pro with the Colts.

Paul Hornung, the league's leading scorer, scored a pair of touchdowns for Green Bay and kicked a 21-yard field goal in the fourth period to tie the game.

Hornung also kicked three conversions. His field goal matched a 31-yard three-pointer kicked by Dave Myhra for the Colts in the third quarter that hiked their lead to 24-14.

Shows Gambler Instinct

Unitas never showed his Mississippi river boat gambler instinct off better to the capacity crowd of 57,808 than in the winning touchdown drive of 71 yards.

Needing only a yard for first down on the Packer 38, Unitas went for broke. Berry caught the first pass on the 8 but was out of bounds. Then Unitas, with the Packers bunched in the line, hit halfback Lenny Moore for a 23-yard gainer.

Switching to Berry again, Unitas passed to the All-Pro end at the 10 and Berry knuckled down defenders Dick Pesonen and Willie Woods on the way into the end zone.

Unitas started like a house afire in the first quarter after the Colts turned back Green Bay at the 15 on the first of two interceptions by Milt Davis. He found Berry for a 45-yard scoring heave and three minutes later Baltimore was in there again.

On the "mothball flea flicker" play, Unitas handed off to fullback Billy Price, who flipped it back to him. Then the quarterback soared the ball 49 yards to Hawkins on the Packer one. He passed the last yard also to Hawkins.

Take 21-0 Lead

Early in the second quarter, a 21-yard toss to Berry hiked the Colt lead to 21-0 and it looked like a rout.

But the Packers fought back and at times took the Colts to pieces. First, they scored before the half ended on a 4-yard run by fullback Jimmie Taylor.

They took off at the start of the second half on an intercepted pass by Bill Forester at the Colt 40 and wound up with a 10-yard scoring jaunt by Hornung.

Bart Starr, Green Bay quarterback whose passing was almost as deadly if not as spectacular as Unitas', completed four passes for 69 yards in another touchdown drive early in the last period, but the Colts made his life-saving interceptions.

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Baltimore Colts, unable to hold an early 21-point lead and facing a worthless tie, winged to a winning touchdown on the arm of quarterback John Unitas for a 38-24 victory Sunday over the Green Bay Packers.

The defending champion Colts moved back into first place in the Western Division of the National Football League with their fifth victory in seven games.

It was the second loss for the Packers in six games and dropped them into second place a step ahead of the idle Chicago Bears (3-2-1).

Fire 4 TD Passes

Unitas threw four touchdown passes and his fourth of the game, 16 yards to end Raymond Berry with less than four minutes to play, broke a 24-24 tie.

The Colts then put the decision on ice with a 13-yard run by halfback Alex Hawkins who earlier had caught a scoring pass from Unitas.

It was the 44th straight game of touchdown throwing by Unitas, who now has heaved 101 touchdown tosses in five years as a pro with the Colts.

Paul Hornung, the league's leading scorer, scored a pair of touchdowns for Green Bay and kicked a 21-yard field goal in the fourth period to tie the game.

Hornung also kicked three conversions. His field goal matched a 31-yard three-pointer kicked by Dave Myhra for the Colts in the third quarter that kicked their lead to 24-14.

Shows Gambler Instinct

Unitas never showed his Mississippi river boat gambler instinct off better to the capacity crowd of 57,808 than in the winning touchdown drive of 71 yards.

Needing only a yard for first down on the Packer 38, Unitas went for broke. Berry caught the first pass on the 8 but was out of bounds. Then Unitas, with the Packers bunched in the line, hit halfback Lenny Moore for a 23-yard gammer.

Switching to Berry again, Unitas passed to the All-Pro end at the 10 and Berry knocked down defenders Dick Pesonen and Willy Woods on the way into the end zone.

Unitas started like a house afire in the first quarter after the Colts turned back Green Bay at the 15 on the first of two interceptions by Milt Davis. He found Berry for a 45-yard scoring heave and three minutes later Baltimore was in there again.

On the "mothball flea flicker" play, Unitas handed off to fullback Billy Prier, who flipped it back to him. Then the quarterback soared the ball 49 yards to Hawkins on the Packer one. He passed the last yard also to Hawkins.

Take 21-0 Lead

Early in the second quarter, a 21-yard toss to Berry kicked the Colts lead to 21-0 and it looked like a rout.

But the Packers fought back and at times tore the Colts to pieces. First, they scored before the half ended on a 4-yard run by fullback Jimmie Taylor.

They took off at the start of the second half on an intercepted pass by Bill Forester at the Colt 40 and wound up with a 10-yard scoring jaunt by Hornung.

Bart Starr, Green Bay quarterback whose passing was almost as deadly if not as spectacular as Unitas', completed four passes for 69 yards in another touchdown drive early in the last period. Hornung carried the last two yards and followed with his equalizing field goal.

Completes 20 Passes

Unitas completed 20 of his 29 passes for 324 yards. Starr connected on 23 of his 32 for 259, but the Colts made four life-saving interceptions.

Browns Lose To New York Giants, 17-13

Cleveland Limited To 3 Yards Rushing

58,324 See Game In Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—New York held the Cleveland Browns vaunted rushing attack to a net gain of six yards Sunday and the Giants won 17-13 for their sixth straight conquest of Cleveland.

Veteran Chuck Conerly, the 39-year-old Giant quarterback, came back to the football way after a two-game absence to pilot the New Yorkers in the crucial conquest.

The loss shoved the Browns out of a top-place tie and into third place in the National Football League's Eastern Conference.

Sam Baker kicked field goals of 21 and 22 yards to give Cleveland a 6-0 lead in the second period.

But New York led at the half 10-6. Pat Summerall missed a field goal try from the 47 and had another prevented on a fumble by the holder in the first period before he booted a 15-yard three-pointer.

Then the Giants went 55 yards in six plays for a touchdown, with Mel Triplett scoring from the one.

Jim Shofner recovered Triplett's fumble on the Giant 13 in the third period, and Milt Plunk passed six yards to Ray Renfro to put the Browns ahead 13-10.

The Giants promptly rebounded by marching 80 yards in 14 plays with Frak Gifford going six for the winning touchdown.

Three times he hit the elusive McDonald for touchdowns. His pinpoint passes also set up Bill Vornep's nine-yard score and two field goals by Bobby Walston.

Walston also kicked four conversions. Pittsburgh 0 0 0 7-7 Philadelphia 14 3 7 10-34

Roach, Crow Sparkle In Win For St. Louis

ST. LOUIS (AP)—The St. Louis Cardinals blended the passing of John Roach, the running of John Crow, the kicking of Gerry Perry and the defensive savvy of Jerry Norton into an explosive 44-7 National Football League victory over the Washington Redskins Sunday.

A chilled crowd of 22,458 watched the Cardinals run up their highest point total of the year in rolling to their third straight victory and fourth of the season.

Roach passed to Sonny Randle for three of the Cards' touchdowns and Crow peeled off runs of 4 and 30 yards for the other two. Perry booted field goals for 18, 21 and 23 yards, and Bobby Joe Conrad added all five conversions.

Dick James carried the final three yards of a drive ignited from a fumble recovery by Ray Krouse in the

HISTORIC FRENCH QUARTER of NEW ORLEANS

In Jackson Square an artist sketches St. Louis Cathedral, built in 1794 after fire nearly leveled town. It was originally a Spanish provincial church of brick and stucco.

Hat-wearing horse pulls surrey down Bourbon Street as cars crowd by. In back stands tallest buildings of downtown section.

Like in days of old, horse-drawn surrey rolls quietly down Royal Street.

The French Quarter—the original New Orleans—remains an unusual town within the big city supported by tourist dollars and laws preventing reckless change to balcony-studded, century old buildings.

Horse-pulled vegetable carts and tourist surreys set the gait for taxis and buses on its narrow streets just off Canal Street on the Mississippi River. The Quarter—or Vieux Carre—is seven blocks wide and thirteen blocks long, taking up about as much of New Orleans as a toenail on a foot.

Division of old, spacious homes made the Quarter an apartment house neighborhood long ago. There is little parking space and less grass.

As in early days, businesses front on the street with dwellings above and behind. The crazyquilt architecture results from 34 years of Spanish possession between two periods of French ownership. Buildings turn ornate balconies against the sidewalks, breathing free on spacious courtyards in the rear.

The atmosphere attracts a varied citizenry—artists and writers (famous and starving) and beatniks, besides the less colorful. Almost unnoticed is an assortment of commerce in addition to many fine restaurants and Bourbon Street's honky tonk row. Probably its most famous landmark is the St. Louis Cathedral, constructed in 1794 in the heart of the original town.

Spanish-style courtyards contain many apartments in manner confusing to delivery men. Here a meter reader hunts apartment "C".

Retail vegetable stands, bountifully laden, line Decatur Street side of French Market.

Waiter serves coffee and square, holeless doughnuts to patron of sidewalk stand at end of French Market.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Dorothy Manners

(While Louella Parsons is on vacation her column will be written by Dorothy Manners)

HOLLYWOOD—Those two he-men, Jack Webb and Robert Mitchum, combine their punches to co-star in "The Last Time I Saw Archie." According to Jack, who is the producer as well as the co-star, this is an original "military comedy" written by Bill Bowers and is based on one of Bill's experiences while in the service during World War II.

"Where's Mitchum now?" I asked Jack.

"He's relaxing on his farm in Maryland," he replied, "but that won't last long. We're starting Dec. 1."

"Archie" is the first of several pictures Webb will either make or direct for United Artists in association with Bill Bowers.

No matter how he troubles, and they are considerable, with the French government come out. Simone Signoret is still in United Artists' "Now We Know" and Anthony Franciosa has been signed to co-star with her. Robert Aldrich has a January starting date for the John O'Hara novel. This is safely past our own political situation forestalling any comments from the international minded Simone that might stir up the Yankees.

Speaking of Franciosa, he seems to go from one European charmer to another speaking professionally. He has "Go Naked in the World" coming up with Gina Lollobrigida.

There will be more than usual activity in the home of the Bob Denvers come election night. The "Dobie Gillis" TV comic and his wife expect the stork just about the time the rest of the world expects the verdict on Nixon or Kennedy.

Says Bob, "As of the moment we're referring to the baby as "undecided." That's us. Don't know what the baby will be and we still haven't made up our minds how we'll vote." I would say Mrs. Denver better make up HER mind pretty quick, at least about the Republicans and the Democrats!

It's sometimes hard to be a good father and also an actor, particularly in the case of a divorce with children involved. Cliff Robertson called to say he has changed his mind about going to Europe to do "The Big Show" with Esther Williams and Van Heflin for Robert Lippert.

"It would mean I would have to be away over the holidays and I've had so little time to spend with my little girl Stephanie since my divorce from Cynthia (the former Mrs. Jack Lemmon). Stephanie is two now—getting old enough to realize her father isn't around much. I'd like the trip and the picture—but I think I'll stay here and put on a Santa Claus suit."

Mickey Rooney was visiting on the set of "West Side Story" and met David Winters who looks 16 but is 20 years old. Winters is up for the "Andy Hardy" TV series at MGM to play Mickey's old role.

He said to the Mick, "Have you got any advice about playing 'Andy'?"

Mickey thought a minute. "Yep," he said, "don't get married four times."

A lot of film has been run through the cameras at Columbia testing 150 girls to inherit Sandra Dee's original "Gidget" part in the follow-up "Gidget Goes Hawaiian." But the girl who wins is Debra Wilde, whom producer Jerry Brosler talked Sam Briskin into signing on a multiple movie deal—that's how good he thinks she is.

Debra is blonde where Sandra was redheaded, she's from New York, and up to now her only experience has been in summer stock in the East. She just flew in and plans to appear for Honolulu to start out again Nov. 28. (Copyright 1960)

ANSWERS TO BRIDGE QUIZ

Q. 1—As South you hold:

♠A10 ♥A10 9 2 ♦K8 4 3 ♣7 5
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1♥ Pass 1♠ Pass

What do you bid now?

A. One no trump. This may seem strange with a worthless doubleton in clubs, but the point is that a raise in spades may not be offered with an absolutely minimum hand. This hand contains 13 points. In point of fact, there is some doubt as to whether this hand should be opened. It comes only in the optional class but, if it is opened, the brakes must be applied at once.

Q. 2—As South you hold:

♠A10 6 2 ♥KJ 6 5 2 ♦Q ♣A Q 5
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1♦ Pass 2♥ Pass 3♥ Pass

What do you bid now?

A. Four clubs. This bid is preparatory to bidding six no trump, the safety of which we have no doubt. But there may be greater things in store for us, and we had better tell all.

Q. 3—As South you hold:

♠K 7 2 ♥9 6 3 2 ♦K 6 5 4 ♣8 3
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
2♥ Pass 3♥ Pass 4♥ Pass

What do you bid now?

A. While it is true that you have a very sound raise of your partner's demand bid, there is no further action that you can properly take. Though you made a constructive response, partner did not proceed with any slam invitations even though he had ample room to do so.

Q. 4—As South you hold:

♠K 7 5 3 ♥A K Q ♣A Q 9 8 5 2
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1♦ Pass Double 2♦ Pass 2♥ Pass

What do you bid now?

A. This choice is for a bid of three clubs. Our hand is for a bit of three clubs. This may seem a little "road-hog," but there is method to what we appear to be our madness. On the surface it will seem strange to run out of a suit in which we hold the three top honors, but it must be recalled that partner was forced to speak, and may have four small trumps. He may find it quite inconvenient to have to ruff diamonds with the A-K-Q of trumps.

Q. 5—As South you hold:

♠J 10 7 4 2 ♥6 3 2 ♦7 5 ♣8 4 3
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1♥ Double Redouble ?
1♥ Double Redouble ?

What do you bid now?

A. One spade. This is not considered a free bid. It is simply an inexpensive suggestion to partner as to where the hand might best be played. If you pass it to partner he may have to bid diamonds, which may prove unsatisfactory as a trump suit. Bear in mind that passing the redouble in this sequence does not express a desire to play the hand at that contract.

Q. 6—As South you hold:

♠8 3 2 ♥A Q 10 9 2 ♦A Q 9 8 ♣6
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1♥ Pass 2♠ Pass 2♥ Pass

What do you bid now?

A. If South wishes to temporize, the proper call is three diamonds, with the intention of making a vigorous jump on the next round. An alternate call is a direct gambling bid of six diamonds, of which we do not disapprove.

Q. 7—As South you hold:

♠A 4 2 ♥7 ♦A K Q 9 8 6 3 ♣8 7
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1♦ Pass 2♥ Pass 2♥ Pass

What do you bid now?

A. Four clubs. Obviously, some mild effort should be made toward slam, and the recommended procedure is the showing of an ace rather than the display of another suit. Furthermore, this call affords partner a convenient opportunity to show the ace of diamonds.

Q. 8—As South you hold:

♠10 ♥K J 7 3 ♦K Q J 9 ♣A 10 4
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1♠ Pass 2♥ Pass 2♥ Pass

What do you bid now?

A. Three hearts, to describe a good five card suit. There is nothing to be gained by your bidding two no trump, which might suggest a little something in the black suits. Over three hearts, if partner is so inclined, he may bid three no trump.

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

Rouge Is A Flush, Not A Blush

Rouge, correctly used, will always subtract a few birthdays from a woman's age. That's why the very young girl doesn't need it... but her mother probably does.

A delicate touch of rouge brightens the eyes as it heightens natural complexion glow. So it's a MUST for parties, particularly evening affairs when artificial lighting tends to drain away color and give a woman's face a sallow cast.

Even during the day, a pair of rosy cheeks can be a pick-me-up. Try some and see, the next time you look pale or "feel" pale.

Is your skin oily? Then a cake rouge is best for you, worn over your cake or pressed-powder foundation. Your oily skin may absorb the color a lot faster—which doesn't mean you should apply a lot of rouge to begin with, but rather that you should carry rouge in your purse for touch-ups.

Dry skins require cream or liquid rouge, applied with moist fingertips over moist foundation. Spread just a little at a time and be sure it sets before you dust on your powder.

— and "rubbing it off" will just seem to make it brighter (a quirk of cake rouge) — you may as well cream away your makeup and begin all over again.

A good way to find out just where to apply your rouge is to soak a washcloth in hot water, then hold it to your cheeks a minute or two. Where the blood rises to the surface is the area your rouge should cover—starting at about the center of each cheek in your smiling face.

Wear rouge high on the face, never below the tip of your nose (lest you look older). And be sure to blend out the edges, to fade the color gradually toward the hairline, just as your natural flush recedes.

SECRETS OF SKIN CARE. Is your skin dry, oily? In-between? Learn the right care for all types of skin by reading SECRETS OF SKIN CARE. A copy's yours for 10c and a stamped, return envelope sent to "Secrets of Charm," c/o this newspaper.

Answers Your Problems

DEAR READERS: I am not prepared to haul out the wet noodle just yet, but I've had so much intelligent opposition to some recent advice, I feel obligated to print the dissenting point of view.

The original letter was from an employee who saw a foreman stealing crates of merchandise from the factory in which he worked. The employee's wife told him to mind his own business and keep his mouth shut. He said he felt disloyal to his boss—knowing what was going on, and not having the courage to report it.

I advised him to "put his mouth up where the principles were," and told him to go to the foreman, let him know he had been seen stealing, and to make it clear if it happened again, he'd be reported to the management.

This is what the mail has been like:

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I used to believe in high principles, too, but they are too costly for working people.

I was employed in a department store. I knew a certain woman was stealing — first small items, then larger ones. She reported them as "shoplifted." I told her if she didn't stop I would go to the boss.

He said all HIS employees were reported me as a trouble-maker with a wild imagination. In fact, she made me sound like a nut. As a result I was demoted. She is now the boss' assistant. At my age I can't change jobs and start over. So I just play deaf, dumb and blind, and anyone who wants to back up a truck and empty the store can do it, for all I care.

DEAR ANN: I go along with you 99 per cent of the time, but on that foreman letter you goofed. Do you know what a foreman can do to an employee? I do, because it happened to me. My foreman was stealing wallets and jewelry and I caught him red-handed. I told him to give back the stuff or else. He said "You didn't see anything, Bud."

The next week I had all the dirty jobs in the plant. Two weeks later I got a notice from upstairs that my work was inferior, and one month later I was canned.

—LITTLE JOEY

P.S. The foreman is still there.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Sorry I don't agree that the man who witnessed stealing should inform the fellow that if he doesn't stop he'll tell. Smart guys keep their traps shut. Heroism is for jerks. Listen to MY story:

I worked in a large office handling cash deposits. I became aware that one fellow was not putting through slips on all the money that he was taking in. I was sure he was pocketing about $50 a day. I went to the boss. The boss really told me off.

He said all HIS employees were reported me as a trouble-maker with a wild imagination. In fact, she made me sound like a nut. As a result I was demoted. She is now the boss' assistant. At my age I can't change jobs and start over. So I just play deaf, dumb and blind, and anyone who wants to back up a truck and empty the store can do it, for all I care.

DEAR ANN: Our daughter is only 16. She's in her second year of high school and makes honor grades. Yesterday she announced she wants to start going with boys and wear lipstick "like the rest of the girls." She claims we are too strict.

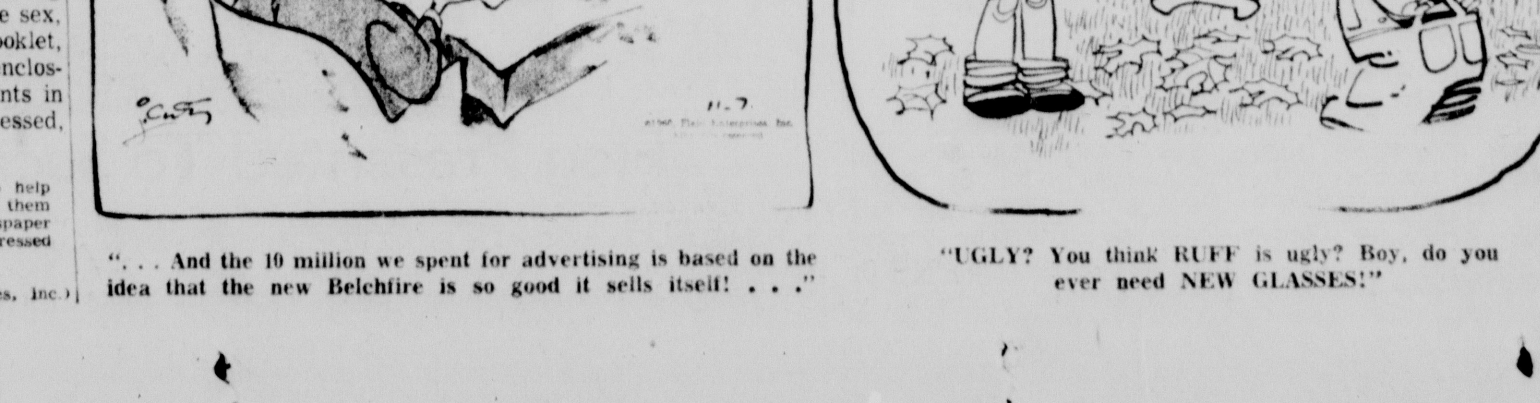

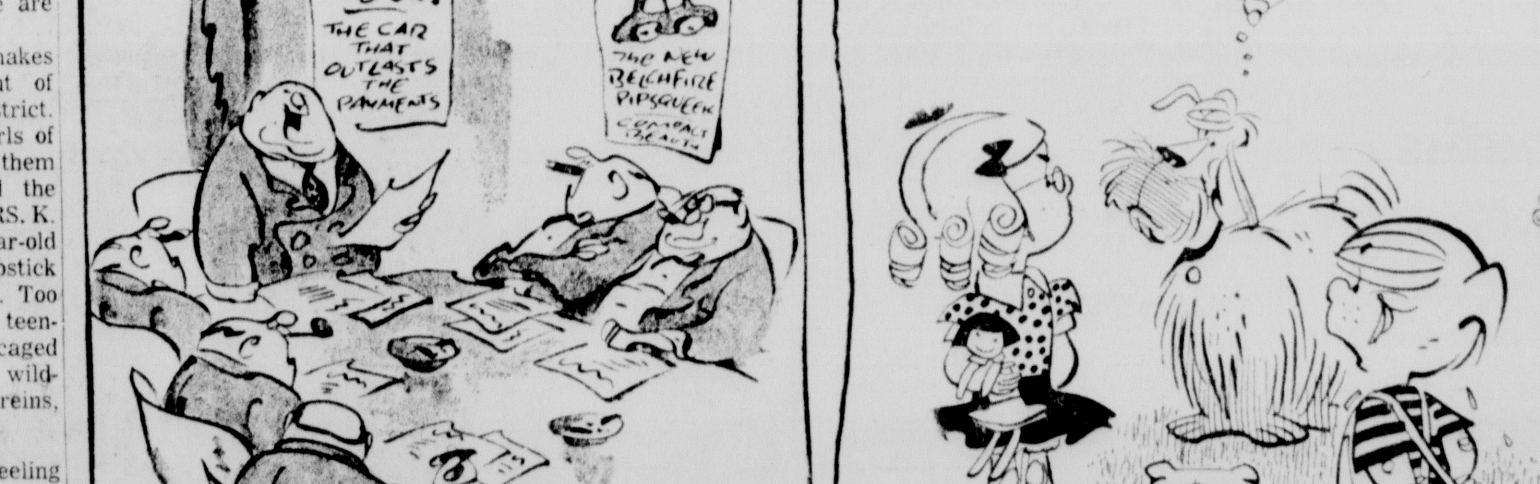

I say the reason she makes good grades and stays out of trouble is because we ARE strict. I hate the way the young girls of today paint up. I say keep them away from temptation and the devil. What do you say?—MRS. K.

DEAR MRS. K.: A 16-year-old girl SHOULD be wearing lipstick and dating, if she wants to. Too much discipline can make a teenager feel loose. Once the "caged ones" get loose they are the wildest of all. Loosen the reins, Mother.

To learn the knack of feeling comfortable with the opposite sex, send for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "How To Be Date Bait," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

75-80% Vote Seen In Allegany County

If the opinions of political leaders of both parties are valid, between 75 and 80 per cent of Allegany County's 40,663 registered voters will go to the polls between 7 a.m. and 7 p.m. tomorrow to make selections in the Presidential and Congressional races and register their views on 15 proposed amendments to the State Constitution and a referendum on the Potomac River Compact.

Summary Of Questions On Ballot

16 Issues Generate Little Interest Here

Very little interest has been generated in 15 proposed Constitutional amendments and one referendum which will be on the ballot tomorrow. Many affect only one particular county or Baltimore City or one section.

Probably Amendment No. 12 has aroused the greatest interest among these 15 issues. Both the State Bar Association and the Allegany County Bar Association have endorsed Amendment No. 12, which would increase the number of judges on the Maryland Court of Appeals from five to seven. Former Judge William C. Walsh and retired Judge George Henderson have both spoken out in support of this amendment.

The other 14 amendments would do the following things:

1. Permit judges of the local circuit to fill a vacancy in the state's attorney's office in counties without resident judges, affecting only the Eastern Shore.
2. Permit Baltimore County authorities to take over land as appraised value pending condemnation jury's award, to speed construction projects.
3. Permit state to borrow on future taxes to pay for legislative-approved projects.
4. Replace Baltimore City's police magistrates with fulltime judges.
5. Give counties and municipalities the same urban renewal powers now possessed only by Baltimore City.
6. Authorize competitive elections for Baltimore People's Court.
7. Permit Montgomery County to take land at appraised value without waiting for condemnation jury's award.
8. Increase Prince George's County judges from two to four and make present legislators eligible for new posts.
9. Prohibit new General Assembly in Annapolis from acting on bills vetoed by governor during previous session.
10. Provide that the Senate president, House speaker, state comptroller and attorney general should be in order to succeed the governor if anything should happen to the state's chief executive.
11. Give fifth judge to Montgomery County and fourth judge to both Second Judicial Circuit (Eastern Shore) and Fourth Judicial Circuit (Allegany, Garrett and Washington counties).
12. Cited above.
13. Authorize assessment of different classes of land on different standards.
14. Authorize farm assessments on agricultural value alone, rather than on speculative value.
15. Allow counties to grant borrowed funds to agencies such as industrial development corporations, by single act of General Assembly.

The final matter on the ballots is a referendum on the 1958 Potomac River Compact between Maryland and Virginia by which Maryland would share its control over the Potomac River's fish, crab and oyster harvests.

U. S. Senator J. Glenn Beall, former Governor William Preston Lane Jr. and the State Republican Committee have urged defeat of this referendum. The State Tidewater Fisheries Commission and State Senator Frederick C. Malkus have urged its approval.

Light Snowfall Covers Area; Highways Wet

Cumberland Has .07 Inch Of Rain

A light snow fell most of yesterday in the tri-state area, but Cumberland escaped with only a moderate rainfall. Temperatures ranged from a low of 27 degrees in Oakland, Garrett County, to a high of 43 degrees here.

State Police reported highways wet and slushy in mountainous areas. The snow was beginning to lay, covering trees and ground in Garrett County and in nearby Pennsylvania.

R. E. Weber, weather observer at Oakland, reported nearly one-half inch of snow fell there Saturday night and another 1 1/2 inches of snow fell during the day Sunday. Temperatures reached a high of 33 degrees in Oakland and highways were wet throughout the area.

Snow East Of City

The snow blanketed most of Garrett County, east to Frostburg in Allegany County before turning to rain. Snow was reported on Martin's Mountain and Siding Hill Mountain east of Cumberland.

Heavy flurries and some slush also were noted in the mountainous areas of West Virginia. Pennsylvania State Police reported heavy snow falling in the Somerset and Bedford County areas. While highways were wet, they were not considered dangerous last night, police said.

Low 35 Here

Cumberland had a high of 43 following an early morning low of 35 yesterday. At 6 p.m. the mercury registered 36 degrees and .07 inch of precipitation had been recorded by R. R. Golden, weather observer at Constitution Park.

The State Roads Commission reported one small truck and crew was working west of Frostburg in Allegany County, salting U.S. Route 40.

Forecast for today is partly cloudy, windy and snow flurries, with temperatures in the 40s.

Grantsville Man Is Charged With Motor Violation

Ray M. Bender, 33, of Grantsville, was charged with a motor vehicle violation last night following a hit-and-run accident on U. S. Route 40 near Clarysville. State Trooper G. C. Wachter investigated and placed the charge against the Grantsville man after William J. Byrnes, Frostburg, reported his car struck by Bender's automobile as the latter was passing a number of vehicles on Route 40.

The mishap occurred about 6:40 p.m. Trooper Wachter said Bender apparently struck Byrnes' car while passing and he then left the scene of the accident.

A hearing has been set for Thursday morning in Trial Magistrates Court.

Cresaptown Man Held For Assault

A Cresaptown man is being held in Allegany County Jail on an assault charge and will be given a hearing today in Trial Magistrates Court at 2 p.m.

Trooper G. C. Wachter of the Maryland State Police said James Paul Martin Jr., was arrested by Baltimore City Police on a warrant issued here charging Martin with assault upon Shirley Paglialonga of Baltimore.

Clinic Is Deferred

The Health Department will hold a child health clinic Wednesday at 9 a.m. in Grace Methodist Church here. The clinic is normally held on Tuesday but was deferred since Tuesday is Election Day.

'Don't Forget To Vote'

Too young to vote Tuesday for the Nixon-Lodge-Mathias ticket, these girls banded together as the Pre-Voting Republicans took over Republican telephone headquarters Saturday and made some 1,000 calls to remind citizens of the day, hour and their place of voting. The girls seen here, all juniors or seniors of Allegany High School, are Wilma Nunamaker, Sonja Keyser, Donna Simpson, Barbara Psimer, Sandy Roeder, Pam Cornelius, Jean Purucker, Linda Susan Carter, Dorothy Kufner and Shirley Bapst. The young GOP volunteer workers reported they had a good time and will offer their services to the party on Tuesday.

Tawes Urges Approval Of River Compact

Says Voters Should Weigh Its Merits

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—Gov. Tawes Sunday urged Maryland voters to approve the new Potomac River Compact with Virginia when it comes before them for a decision Tuesday.

Tawes said it was "unfortunate, I think, that the proposed Potomac River Compact, which from its inception had been treated as a non-partisan matter has become a partisan issue in this political campaign."

"It is a question that should be considered on its merits and on its merits alone," the governor said.

The agreement would create a joint agency to administer fishing affairs in the Maryland-owned Potomac and would replace a 1785 compact which the Maryland Legislature abrogated in 1957.

The governor hit at charges by some state Republican leaders and congressional candidates that the compact is a "give-away" to Virginia and that Maryland should have held out for joint agreement covering Chesapeake Bay.

"The choice Maryland voters have is not, as some would mislead them into believing, between the new compact and some ideal, but as yet unobtainable arrangement that would include cooperative control of the lower Chesapeake Bay," Tawes said.

"The choice is the new compact, under which Maryland gains many definite benefits or the old compact of 1785, which produced nothing but chaos and depletion of a valuable natural resource."

"Only Intelligent Choice" "I believe that Maryland voters will make what I consider the only intelligent choice in this situation and vote for the new compact," Tawes said.

He said the new agreement involves concessions from Virginia "which not only recognize our ownership of the Potomac but which, for the first time in history, establish the machinery for the efficient management of the marine life of the river by cooperative action."

The Sunday announcement was Tawes' first official statement of the campaign on the compact, but his position has been well known.

Health Nurses Follow Up Accidental Poison Cases

The Allegany County Health Department is following up each accidental poisoning case reported to it by the Poison Control Center for the Tri-State Area and the State Health Department.

Dr. Ton van Strien, county health officer, said public health nurses from the department are visiting each home or family in which an accidental poisoning has occurred.

The object, he said, is to provide health education which may prevent a recurrence of the accident.

He said the nurses' task usually is to advise the family on the routine preventive measures which should be taken in every home, and to give mothers an understanding of the poisonous material to which some member of the family was exposed.

It will be a process, he said, of investigation and education aimed at prevention.

Dr. van Strien said the Health Department begins its work as soon as reports are received from the Poison Control Center which was established for the area in Sacred Heart Hospital early this fall.

The center serves as an information clearing house and an emergency aid station for both physicians and patients. Its services are available around the clock.

It furnishes details for diagnosis, therapy or consultation through the services from the doctor on call to the center. A limited supply of drugs needed in the emergency treatment of poisonings is available free at the center on request of the attending physician.

Lonaconing Man Takes Shot At State Trooper

Joseph E. Matthews Lodged In Jail

Joseph Ellsworth Matthews, 27, of 98 Jackson Street, Lonaconing, a construction worker, was lodged in the county jail yesterday for questioning today in an attempt to shoot a State Police trooper.

State's Attorney James S. Getty will conduct an investigation and will question the trooper and other witnesses and Matthews.

According to police, State Trooper Bruce Diehl, who works the Georges Creek Region, went into the Lonaconing police station yesterday about 1:15 a.m. as a complaint came in that Matthews had armed himself at the family home and would not permit anyone to enter.

Trooper Diehl accompanied Lonaconing Officer George Duckworth to the Matthews home.

Matthews was in the kitchen of the house, armed with a .22 calibre automatic rifle and a 12-gauge double barrel shotgun. Officers were told he had quarreled with his brother and refused to permit anyone in the house.

Trooper Diehl parked his cruiser in such a manner that Matthews could see it, and then walked into the glare of his headlights, so Matthews, who was in the kitchen with the door open, could see him.

Matthews fired one shot at the trooper, who said the bullet whizzed past within inches of his head. Matthews then left the house and hid in the woods, taking the rifle with him. He left the shotgun behind, police said.

After waiting until about 4 a.m., Trooper Diehl said he and the others were convinced that Matthews would not reappear until daylight.

Yesterday, Trooper Diehl and several other officers returned to the scene, arrested Matthews who had returned to the house, and lodged him in jail.

75-80% Vote Seen In Allegany County

If the opinions of political leaders of both parties are valid, between 75 and 80 per cent of Allegany County's 40,663 registered voters will go to the polls between 7 a.m. and 7 p.m. tomorrow to make selections in the Presidential and Congressional races and register their views on 15 proposed amendments to the State Constitution and a referendum on the Potomac River Compact.

Summary Of Questions On Ballot

16 Issues Generate Little Interest Here

Very little interest has been generated in 15 proposed Constitutional amendments and one referendum which will be on the ballot tomorrow. Many affect only one particular county or Baltimore City or one section.

Probably Amendment No. 12 has aroused the greatest interest among these 15 issues. Both the State Bar Association and the Allegany County Bar Association have endorsed Amendment No. 12, which would increase the number of judges on the Maryland Court of Appeals from five to seven. Former Judge William C. Walsh and retired Judge George Henderson have both spoken out in support of this amendment.

The other 14 amendments would do the following things:

1. Permit judges of the local circuit to fill a vacancy in the state's attorney's office in counties without resident judges, affecting only the Eastern Shore.
2. Permit Allegany County authorities to take over land as appraised value pending condemnation jury's award, to speed construction projects.
3. Permit state to borrow on future taxes to pay for legislative-approved projects.
4. Replace Baltimore City's police magistrates with fulltime judges.
5. Give counties and municipalities the same urban renewal powers now possessed only by Baltimore City.
6. Authorize competitive elections for Baltimore People's Court.
7. Permit Montgomery County to take land at appraised value without waiting for condemnation jury's award.
8. Increase Prince George's County judges from two to four and make present legislators eligible for new posts.
9. Prohibit new General Assembly in Annapolis from acting on bills vetoed by governor during previous session.
10. Provide that the Senate president, House speaker, state comptroller and attorney general should be in order to succeed the governor if anything should happen to the state's chief executive.
11. Give fifth judge to Montgomery County and fourth judge to both Second Judicial Circuit (Eastern Shore) and Fourth Judicial Circuit (Allegany, Garrett and Washington counties.)
12. Cited above.
13. Authorize assessment of different classes of land on different standards.
14. Authorize farm assessments on agricultural value alone, rather than on speculative value.
15. Allow counties to grant borrowed funds to agencies such as industrial development corporations, by single act of General Assembly.

The final matter on the ballots is a referendum on the 1958 Potomac River Compact between Maryland and Virginia by which Maryland would share its control over the Potomac River's fish, crab and oyster harvests.

U. S. Senator J. Glenn Beall, former Governor William Preston Lane Jr. and the State Republican Committee have urged defeat of this referendum. The State Tidewater Fisheries Commission and State Senator Frederick C. Malkus have urged its approval.

Cumberland Has .07 Inch Of Rain

A light snow fell most of yesterday in the tri-state area, but Cumberland escaped with only a moderate rainfall. Temperatures ranged from a low of 27 degrees in Oakland, Garrett County, to a high of 43 degrees here.

State Police reported highways wet and slushy in mountainous areas. The snow was beginning to lay, covering trees and ground in Garrett County and in nearby Pennsylvania.

Tawes Urges Approval Of River Compact

Says Voters Should Weigh Its Merits

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—Gov. Tawes Sunday urged Maryland voters to approve the new Potomac River Compact with Virginia when it comes before them for a decision Tuesday.

Tawes said it was "unfortunate," he thought, that the proposed Potomac River Compact, which from its inception had been treated as a non-partisan matter has become a partisan issue in this political campaign.

"It is a question that should be considered on its merits and on its merits alone," the governor said.

The agreement would create a joint agency to administer fishing affairs in the Maryland-owned Potomac and would replace a 1955 compact which the Maryland Legislature abrogated in 1957.

The governor hit at charges by some state Republican leaders and congressional candidates that the compact is a "give-away" to Virginia and that Maryland should have held out for joint agreement covering Chesapeake Bay.

"The choice Maryland voters have is not, as some would mislead them into believing, between the new compact and some ideal, but as yet unobtainable arrangement that would include cooperative control of the lower Chesapeake Bay," Tawes said.

"The choice is the new compact, under which Maryland gains many definite benefits or the old compact of 1955, which produced nothing but chaos and depletion of a valuable natural resource."

"Only Intelligent Choice"

"I believe that Maryland voters will make what I consider the only intelligent choice in such a situation and vote for the new compact," Tawes said.

He said the new agreement involves concessions from Virginia "which not only recognize our ownership of the Potomac but which, for the first time in history, establish the machinery for the efficient management of the marine life of the river by cooperative action."

The Sunday announcement was Tawes' first official statement of the campaign on the compact, but his position has been well known.
